MAGNUS, Commissioner, U.S. Customs and

ALEJANDRO MAYORKAS, Secretary,

Department of Homeland Security, in his official capacity; U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY; CHRIS

25

26

27

1	Border Protection, in his official capacit WILLIAM A. FERRARA, Executive	y;
2	Assistant Commissioner, Office of Field Operations, U.S. Customs and Border	I
3	Protection, in his official capacity; RAU
4	ORTIZ, Chief of U.S. Border Patrol, U.S. Customs and Border Protection, in his
5	official capacity; U.S. CUSTOMS AND BORDER PROTECTION; TAE D.
6	JOHNSON, Acting Director, U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement,	in
7	his official capacity; U.S. IMMIGRATION CUSTOMS ENFORCEMENT,	ON
8	Defendants.
9
10	[Caption Page Continued - Additional Attorneys for Plaintiffs]
11	FELIX MONTANEZ* Felix.Montanez@splcenter.org	MATTHEW VOGEL*† matt@nipnlg.org
12	SOUTHERN POVERTY LAW CENTER	AMBER QURESHI*; amber@nipnlg.org
13	P.O. Box 12463	NATIONAL IMMIGRATION PROJECT OF THE NATIONAL LAWYERS GUILD
14	Miami, FL 33101 Tel: (561) 590-1646	2201 Wisconsin Ave. NW, Suite 200
15	STEPHANIE M. ALVAREZ- JONES!	Washington, D.C. 20007 Tel: (617) 227-9727 / Fax: (617) 227-5495
16	Stephanie. Alvarez Jones @splcenter.org SOUTHERN POVERTY LAW
17	CENTER
18	P.O. Box 1287 Decatur, GA 30031 Tel: (470) 737-8265
19		IOUN A EDEEDMANI*
20	JORDAN CUNNINGS* jordan@innovationlawlab.org KELSEY PROVO*	JOHN A. FREEDMAN*  John.Freedman@arnoldporter.com  CAROLINE D. KELLY*
21	kelsey@innovationlawlab.org TESS HELLGREN*	CAROLINE D. KELLY*  Caroline.Kelly@arnoldporter.com  EMILY REEDER-RICCHETTI*
22	tess@innovationlawlab.org INNOVATION LAW LAB	Emily.Reeder-Ricchetti@arnoldporter.com ARNOLD & PORTER KAYE
23	333 SW 5th Avenue, Suite 200	SCHOLER LLP
24	Portland, OR 97204 Tel: (503) 922-3042	601 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20001
25	Fax: (503) 882-0281	Tel: (202) 942-5000 / Fax: (202) 942-5999
26	* admitted Pro Hac Vice
	 Pro Hac Vice application pending
27	† not admitted in DC; working remotely from and admitted in Louisiana only
28	‡ admitted in Maryland; DC bar admission pending ‡ admitted in New Jersey; GA bar admission forthcoming
	Tanana and the first of sey, off our works

INTRODUCTION

- 1. Between January 2019 and February 2021, the U.S. government trapped nearly 70,000 individuals seeking protection, including Individual Plaintiffs, in life-threatening conditions in Mexico under the Migrant Protection Protocols ("MPP" or "Protocols"). The Protocols functioned to deny protection to nearly every individual subjected to them. Their ruthless effectiveness in this regard—as evidenced by the 98 percent deportation rate for affected individuals with final immigration-court decisions over fourteen months<sup>1</sup>—is consistent with their Orwellian name.
- 2. By forcing Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals to return to Mexico to await their immigration proceedings in dangerous Mexican border towns, the Protocols functionally denied them access to the U.S. asylum system and left them to contend with assault, robbery, rape, kidnapping, and other harm at the hands of cartels, gang members, and Mexican officials. The Protocols, as implemented, simultaneously deprived these individuals of access to their basic needs and obstructed their efforts to seek legal representation. Moreover, Defendants continually thwarted the efforts of the few legal service providers who represent individuals subjected to the Protocols—including Organizational Plaintiffs Immigrant Defenders Law Center and Jewish Family Service of San Diego—to screen, advise, represent, or otherwise assist such individuals.
- 3. At the outset of his administration, President Biden promised that the United States would "restore and strengthen our own asylum system, which has been badly damaged by policies enacted over the last 4 years that contravened our values and caused needless human suffering." To this end, Defendants suspended new enrollments into MPP in February 2021 and began "winding down" MPP. Department of Homeland

&lt;sup>1</sup> See TRAC Immigration, Details on MPP (Remain in Mexico) Deportation Proceedings, https://bit.ly/3yzwW8x (filter set to "Setting: Outcome"). From February 2019 to March 2020, 32,234 removal orders were issued in MPP cases as compared to 740 grants of relief.

&lt;sup>2</sup> Exec. Order No. 14010, 86 Fed. Reg. 8,267 (Feb. 2, 2021), https://bit.ly/31Tc9AZ.

Security ("DHS") initially began processing individuals in Mexico with "active" MPP cases for return to the United States, and later expanded the wind-down to include individuals outside the United States whose cases had been terminated by immigration judges³ and individuals who had received in absentia removal orders. DHS's attempted wind-down failed to rectify much of the harm caused by the Protocols.

4. In June 2021, mea attempted to terminate the Protocols. Citing official data, DHS Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas conceded that the high percentage of completed MPP cases resulting in in absentia removal orders raised serious concerns about the program's implementation, including whether individuals subjected to MPP had an adequate opportunity to seek relief and whether conditions in Mexico led individuals to abandon meritorious claims for protection.<sup>4</sup> In DHS's own words, MPP "impos[ed] substantial and unjustifiable human costs on migrants who were exposed to harm while waiting in Mexico. . . . Significant evidence indicates that individuals were subject to extreme violence and insecurity at the hands of transnational criminal organizations that profited from putting migrants in harm's way while awaiting their court hearings in Mexico." In a filing in this case, the government even acknowledges that "[a]s a matter of policy, Defendants do not defend MPP or its prior implementation." ECF No. 163 (Defs.' Opp. to TRO) at 1 n.1.6

&lt;sup>3</sup> Immigration judges terminated MPP proceedings based on improvidently issued Notices to Appear and, in some instances, when individuals did not appear for their hearings.

&lt;sup>4</sup> DHS, Memorandum from Secretary Alejandro N. Mayorkas to Acting Heads of CBP, ICE, and USCIS, Termination of the Migrant Protection Protocols Program, at 7 (June 1, 2021), https://bit.ly/3IQsua5.

<sup>5</sup> DHS, Explanation of the Decision to Terminate the Migrant Protection Protocols

(&quot;Second Termination Memo"), at 2 (Oct. 29, 2021), https://bit.ly/30ydfkW.

<sup>6</sup> In February 2020, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit affirmed a preliminary injunction setting aside the Protocols because they are statutorily unauthorized. Innovation Law Lab v. Wolf, 951 F.3d 1073, 1084 (9th Cir. 2020). The U.S. Supreme Court initially stayed the injunction pending the disposition of a petition for a writ of certiorari, 140 S. Ct. 1564 (2020), which was later granted, – S. Ct. – (Oct. 19, 2020). On February 3, 2021, the Court granted the government's Footnote continued to next page.

- 5. In August 2021, the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas permanently enjoined the June 2021 directive terminating MPP and ordered the federal government to reinstate MPP until it is lawfully rescinded and until the federal government obtains sufficient detention capacity to hold noncitizens subject to mandatory detention.<sup>7</sup>
- 6. DHS's wind-down of MPP was abruptly halted in August 2021, following the injunction against the June 2021 termination memo, even though the termination of MPP had no impact on the status of individuals who had been subjected to MPP in the past and had obtained final removal orders or had their cases terminated.
- 7. In late October 2021, DHS re-terminated MPP with a lengthy explanatory memo, including the proviso that "[t]he termination of MPP will not take effect until the current injunction is lifted." DHS subsequently restarted MPP by issuing guidance on "Court-Ordered Reimplementation of MPP." On December 8, 2021, the first individuals were returned to Mexico under DHS's new version of MPP ("MPP 2.0").
- 8. Meanwhile, thousands of individuals subjected to MPP who have final orders of removal or terminated cases, including Individual Plaintiffs, remain stranded outside the United States and continue to be deprived of security, stability, motion to hold further briefing in abeyance and remove the case from the February 2021 argument calendar. On June 21, 2021, the Court granted the government's motion to vacate the judgment. The case was remanded to the Ninth Circuit with instructions to direct the district court to vacate as moot its prior order granting a preliminary injunction. The district court vacated the preliminary injunction on August 6, 2021. Innovation Law Lab v. Mayorkas, No. 3:19-cv-00807-RS (N.D. Cal. Aug. 6, 2021), ECF No. 131.

&lt;sup>7</sup> The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit and the Supreme Court subsequently denied the government's application for a stay of the district court's order. Texas v. Biden, 10 F.4th 538, 560–61 (5th Cir. 2021) (per curiam); Biden v. Texas, – S. Ct. –, No. 21A21, 2021 WL 3732667 (Aug. 24, 2021) (mem.).

&lt;sup>8</sup> Press Release, DHS, DHS Issues A New Memo to Terminate MPP (Oct. 29, 2021), https://bit.ly/3GOloRw.

&lt;sup>9</sup> DHS, Court-Ordered Reimplementation of MPP Policy Guidance ("Reimplementation Guidance") (Dec. 2, 2021), https://bit.ly/3GHnpyW.

9. Through this lawsuit, Plaintiffs seek to facilitate the return of Individual Plaintiffs to the United States, with appropriate precautionary public health measures, to pursue their asylum claims from inside the country; to certify a class of similarly situated individuals; to allow Organizational Plaintiffs to effectively fulfill their missions of providing legal assistance to asylum seekers; and to ensure that members of the proposed class receive meaningful access to the U.S. asylum process.<sup>10</sup>

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

- 10. This case arises under the First and Fifth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution; the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. § 1101 et seq.; and the Administrative Procedure Act ("APA"), 5 U.S.C. § 701 et seq.
- 11. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (federal question) and § 1346 (United States as defendant). Defendants have waived sovereign immunity with respect to the claims alleged in this case. 5 U.S.C. § 702. This Court has jurisdiction to enter declaratory and injunctive relief under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202.
- 12. Venue is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e)(1) because Defendants are agencies or officers of the United States acting in their official capacity, and one of the Plaintiff organizations has its principal residence in this district.

&lt;sup>10</sup> For purposes of this Complaint, references to "asylum" or the "U.S. asylum process" encompass the statutory and regulatory processes by which any noncitizen may seek all relevant forms of non-refoulement relief available under U.S. immigration laws, including asylum, withholding of removal, and relief under the Convention Against Torture. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1158, 1231(b)(3); 8 C.F.R. § 1208.17(a).

1 | PARTIES

A. Plaintiffs

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28

13. Plaintiff Lidia Doe, a citizen of Honduras, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. She and her granddaughter crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on or around May 15, 2019, were apprehended and then detained for approximately three days before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Lidia did not have legal representation in her removal proceedings and has faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. Lidia's removal proceedings were terminated on March 9, 2020, after she was unable to attend a scheduled hearing due to a hypertensive crisis for which she had been hospitalized two days before. Lidia is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. If returned to the United States, Lidia and her granddaughter would reside in Iowa with her son-in-law.

Plaintiff Antonella Doe, a citizen of Honduras, suffered harm and fled 14. to the United States to seek asylum. She, her husband, and their two young daughters presented themselves at the U.S.-Mexico border in November 2018. They were forced to wait and ultimately processed into the United States in February 2019. Antonella and her family were detained and returned to Mexico under the Protocols approximately five days later. Antonella did not have legal representation in her removal proceedings and has faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. She missed her first and only immigration court hearing after she was told by the owner of the shelter where they were residing that she would not be allowed to enter the United States for her immigration court hearing because she lacked lawful status. At the hearing, the immigration judge terminated Antonella's case. Antonella did not receive a decision or any notices from the court regarding the status of her case and, until recently, believed her case was still pending. In Mexico, a woman coerced Antonella and her family into working without pay in her home and threatened to report them to the Mexican police if they disobeyed her or tried to leave. This woman also verbally and physically abused Antonella and her daughters. Antonella is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. She was eligible for expanded MPP processing and registered, but she was not processed for return to the United States before DHS halted the MPP wind-down. If returned to the United States, Antonella and her family would reside in North Carolina with a family friend.

- 15. Plaintiff Rodrigo Doe, a citizen of Honduras, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. He crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on or around May 5, 2019, was apprehended and then detained for approximately two days before Defendants returned him to Mexico under the Protocols. Rodrigo did not have legal representation in his removal proceedings and has faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. Rodrigo's case was terminated after he missed his final immigration court hearing due to a lack of transportation to the San Ysidro port of entry. Approximately six months ago, Rodrigo was violently assaulted by four men who stole his phone and wallet. Since his assault, Rodrigo has left the shelter where he lives only to go to work. Rodrigo is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. He was eligible for expanded MPP processing and registered, but he was not processed for return to the United States before DHS halted the MPP wind-down. If returned to the United States, Rodrigo would reside in California with his sister-in-law.
- 16. Plaintiff Chepo Doe, a citizen of El Salvador, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. He and his teenage daughter presented themselves at the U.S.-Mexico border on February 26, 2019 and were detained for approximately two days before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Chepo managed to secure legal representation for his removal proceedings but has faced significant obstacles to finding and confidentially communicating with counsel. While in Mexico, Chepo's daughter became gravely ill. After a local hospital refused treatment due to their migrant status, Chepo felt compelled to return to El Salvador with his daughter to get her medical care. Doctors in El Salvador performed emergency surgery and told Chepo that his daughter had nearly died from necrotizing pancreatitis. As a result, they missed their fourth immigration hearing on February 25, 2020, and Chepo received an in absentia removal order. His case has not been reopened, and no appeal is pending. Chepo is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in El Salvador. He was eligible and registered to apply to reopen his case under expanded MPP processing but was not processed for return to the United States before DHS halted the MPP wind-down. If returned to the United States, Chepo and his daughter would reside in Alabama with his brother.

Case 2:20-cv-09893-JGB-SHK Document 175 Filed 12/22/21 Page 9 of 100 Page ID #:2250

17. Plaintiff Yesenia Doe, a citizen of Honduras, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. She and her son crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on or around July 24, 2019, were apprehended and then detained for approximately three days before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Yesenia did not have legal representation in her removal proceedings and has faced significant obstacles to finding and confidentially communicating with counsel. The day after she was returned to Mexico under the Protocols, Yesenia and her son were kidnapped by cartel members and held for approximately four weeks. After Mexican police rescued them, Yesenia and her son slept on the street for several nights. Out of desperation, Yesenia made the difficult decision to return to her mother's home in Honduras. However, after receiving renewed death threats just a few weeks after they arrived, Yesenia and her son again fled to Mexico. Yesenia missed her first and only immigration court hearing and received an in absentia removal order. Her case has not been reopened, and no appeal is pending. Yesenia is currently stranded, has

&lt;sup>11</sup> Plaintiffs have filed a motion for an emergency order allowing Individual Plaintiffs Chepo Doe, Ariana Doe, and Francisco Doe to return to the United States with their immediate family members, under appropriate precautionary public health measures, in order to seek reopening of their cases and, if successful, pursue their claims for asylum and related relief. See ECF No. 157. As of the date of this filing, that motion remains pending, and the underlying claims on which it is based have been incorporated into the Second Amended Complaint.

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

- experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. She was eligible for expanded MPP processing and registered, but she was not processed for return to the United States before DHS halted the MPP wind-down. If returned to the United States, Yesenia and her son would reside in Texas with her friend.
- Plaintiff Sofia Doe, a citizen of Honduras, suffered harm and fled to the 18. United States to seek asylum. She, her husband, and their young son crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on or around May 15, 2019, were apprehended and then detained for approximately eight days before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Sofia did not have legal representation in her removal proceedings and has faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. She missed her third immigration hearing due to complications with a high-risk pregnancy for which she had recently been hospitalized. As a result, Sofia received an in absentia removal order. Sofia's case has not been reopened, and no appeal is pending. Her husband was assaulted while he was working in Mexico and has now been missing for over three weeks, leaving Sofia and their four-year-old son, who has respiratory problems, alone in Tijuana. Sofia is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. She was eligible for expanded MPP processing and registered, but she was not processed for return to the United States before DHS halted the MPP wind-down. If returned to the United States, Sofia and her family would reside in California with her sister-in-law.
- 19. Plaintiff Gabriela Doe, a citizen of Honduras, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. She and her daughter crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on or around July 12, 2019, were apprehended and then detained for approximately two days before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Gabriela did not have legal representation in her removal proceedings and has faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. The immigration judge denied her claim for asylum. Gabriela was subsequently returned to Mexico and immediately kidnapped and assaulted, and she went into hiding as soon as she escaped. As a result, she was unable to file an appeal or seek legal representation to assist her with this process. Gabriela received a final order of removal as a result.<sup>12</sup> Her case has not been reopened and no appeal is pending. Gabriela is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. If returned to the United States, Gabriela and her daughter would reside in Texas with her friend.

20. Plaintiff Ariana Doe, a citizen of Guatemala, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. She and her young daughter crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on September 2, 2019, were apprehended and then detained for approximately one week before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Ariana did not have legal representation in her removal proceedings and has faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. The immigration judge denied her asylum application, and she was unable to find an attorney to assist with an appeal. She received a final order of removal as a result. Her case has not been reopened, and no appeal is pending. Ariana and her daughter have had to go into hiding to escape a powerful cartel member. Ariana is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. If returned to the United States, Ariana and her daughter would reside in Massachusetts with her family.

21. Plaintiff Francisco Doe, a citizen of El Salvador, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. He crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on July 25, 2019, was apprehended and then detained for approximately one week before Defendants returned him to Mexico under the Protocols. Francisco has faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. He hired an individual in Mexico to assist him with his asylum application, but he does not know whether the individual was a qualified attorney or legal representative. The immigration judge denied Francisco's asylum claim, and the Mexican individual who had previously assisted Francisco misfiled the documents required for his appeal. Francisco received a final order of removal as a result. Francisco has been robbed at gunpoint by armed men and is afraid to go outside because of all the shootings in the area where he lives. His case has not been reopened, and no appeal is pending. Francisco is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. If returned to the United States, Francisco would reside in Florida with his mother.

&lt;sup>12</sup> An order of removal is considered "final" after an individual has either (1) failed to attend their hearing (an "in absentia" removal order); (2) waived appeal; (3) reserved but failed to file an appeal within 30 days of the removal order; (4) appealed the removal order but subsequently withdrawn their appeal; or (5) had their appeal denied by the Board of Immigration Appeals ("BIA") or Attorney General. 8 C.F.R. § 1241.1. While an individual whose appeal is denied by the BIA may file a petition for review in the relevant federal circuit court of appeals, that individual is considered to have a final order of removal unless and until such order is vacated by the federal circuit.

- 22. Plaintiffs Reina and Carlos Doe, citizens of Honduras, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. Reina and Carlos, their two children, and Carlos's son crossed the U.S.-Mexico border in or around the beginning of October 2019, were apprehended and then detained for approximately four days before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Reina and Carlos did not have legal representation in their removal proceedings and have faced significant obstacles to finding and confidentially communicating with counsel. The immigration judge denied Reina and Carlos's asylum claims, and they were unable to find an attorney to assist them in appealing to the BIA. They received final removal orders as a result. Reina and Carlos's case has not been reopened, and no appeal is pending. While they were in Mexico awaiting their immigration hearings, Reina, Carlos, and their family were attacked and threatened by municipal police. Reina and Carlos are currently stranded, have experienced harm, and are living in fear in Mexico. If returned to the United States, Reina, Carlos, and their family would reside in Alabama with a friend.
- 23. Plaintiff Dania Doe, a citizen of El Salvador, suffered harm and fled to the United States to seek asylum. She and her daughter crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on or around September 10, 2019, were apprehended and then detained for approximately three days before Defendants returned them to Mexico under the Protocols. Dania did not have legal representation in her removal proceedings and has

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

- faced significant obstacles to finding counsel. The immigration judge denied her asylum application, and she was unable to find an attorney to assist with her appeal. Dania received a final order of removal as a result. Dania and her daughter lived in dangerous conditions in the migrant camp in Matamoros, and Dania has been kidnapped and brutally raped. Dania is currently stranded, has experienced harm, and is living in fear in Mexico. If returned to the United States, Dania and her daughter would reside in Texas with her family.
- 24. Plaintiff Immigrant Defenders Law Center ("ImmDef") is a nonprofit organization incorporated in California and based in Los Angeles, with additional offices in Riverside, San Diego, and Santa Ana, California, that serves immigrants and refugees throughout Southern California. ImmDef's mission is to provide universal representation so that no immigrant is forced to face removal proceedings without an attorney or accredited representative. To achieve its mission, ImmDef manages several programs, including the Children's Representation Program; the National Qualified Representative Program; the Family Unity Project; Local Funding Initiatives to provide removal defense in Los Angeles, Santa Ana, Long Beach, and the Inland Empire; and the Cross-Border Initiative. The Cross-Border Initiative, which was established in response to MPP, provides direct representation, pro se assistance, Know Your Rights presentations, and other support to individuals subjected to MPP whose cases are pending before the San Diego immigration court or who have received removal orders or had their cases terminated in MPP proceedings. ImmDef also plays a core role in the California Welcoming Task Force ("CAWTF"), a coalition of organizations that provide legal services, humanitarian and health services, advocacy, and communications assistance to individuals seeking asylum in the United States.
- 25. Plaintiff Jewish Family Service of San Diego ("Jewish Family Service") is a nonprofit organization incorporated in California and based in San Diego. The mission of Jewish Family Service's Immigration Services Department is to provide holistic, culturally competent, trauma-informed, quality legal and other supportive services to the immigrant community in San Diego and Imperial Counties. Since early 2019, Jewish Family Service has provided legal and other services to individuals subjected to MPP, including assisting individuals with terminated cases and with motions to reopen. To achieve its mission, Jewish Family Service manages several programs, including an Immigrant Legal Rights Program ("ILRP"), an Affirmative Services Program, and a Higher Education and Legal Services Program. Jewish Family Service also participates in and manages the San Diego Rapid Response Network ("Rapid Response Network"), which was formed in December 2017 to ensure that all detained noncitizens within San Diego County have access to legal consultations. Jewish Family Service operates the Rapid Response Network Migrant Shelter, which provides critical humanitarian assistance to asylum-seeking individuals and families released from detention, including those processed into the United States after being subjected to MPP. The Jewish Family Service ILRP team provides legal support for individuals coming through the Rapid Response Network Migrant Shelter, including support of individuals formerly subjected to MPP. From February 19, 2021, through August 24, 2021, members of Jewish Family Service's ILRP traveled regularly to the San Ysidro port of entry to assist in welcoming and processing individuals and families subjected to the Protocols who were permitted to return to the United States to pursue their immigration cases. Jewish Family Service has also provided legal advice and counseling to hundreds of individuals subjected to MPP. Jewish Family Service co-leads the CAWTF and leads the humanitarian work group of the CAWTF.

B. Defendants

1

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28

26. Defendant Alejandro Mayorkas is the Secretary of Homeland Security. He directs each of the components within DHS, including those responsible for enforcing U.S. immigration laws, and bears ultimate responsibility for administering the immigration laws pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1103. Secretary Mayorkas oversees MPP,

- directed its termination on June 1, 2021, and is ultimately responsible for the decision to process into the United States individuals returned to Mexico under MPP. He is sued in his official capacity.
- 27. Defendant DHS is a cabinet-level department of the U.S. government. Its components include U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services ("USCIS"), U.S. Customs and Border Protection ("CBP"), and U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement ("ICE").
- 28. Defendant Chris Magnus is the Commissioner of CBP. CBP is responsible for the apprehension, detention, and processing of individuals seeking asylum at or near the border, including individuals subject to MPP. He is integrally involved in overseeing the processing of eligible individuals subjected to MPP for return to the United States. He is sued in his official capacity.
- 29. Defendant William A. Ferrara is the Executive Assistant Commissioner of CBP's Office of Field Operations ("OFO"). OFO is the largest component of CBP and is responsible for border security, including immigration and travel through U.S. ports of entry. Defendant Ferrara had responsibility for implementing the original version of MPP from August 30, 2020 through June 1, 2021, and is integrally involved in overseeing the processing of eligible individuals subjected to MPP for return to the United States. He is sued in his official capacity.
- 30. Defendant Raul Ortiz is the Chief of U.S. Border Patrol. He is responsible for enforcing immigration laws between ports of entry, including by detecting, interdicting, and apprehending individuals who attempted to enter the United States between ports of entry and were subsequently subjected to the Protocols. Defendant Ortiz is sued in his official capacity.
- 31. Defendant CBP is the component of DHS that is responsible for the initial processing and detention of noncitizens who are apprehended at or, in the border region, between U.S. land ports of entry.

- 32. Defendant Tae D. Johnson is the Acting Director of ICE. After individuals subjected to MPP were processed by CBP on the day of their hearings, they were transferred to ICE custody for transport to and from immigration court. He is sued in his official capacity.
- 33. Defendant ICE is the component of DHS that is responsible for overseeing immigration detention and carrying out removal orders.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

I. THE U.S. ASYLUM SYSTEM BEFORE THE PROTOCOLS

- A. The Right to Apply for Asylum and Nondiscriminatory Treatment
- 34. The Refugee Act of 1980, the cornerstone of the U.S. asylum system, provides a right to apply for asylum to individuals seeking safe haven in the United States. The purpose of the Refugee Act is to enforce the "historic policy of the United States to respond to the urgent needs of persons subject to persecution in their homelands." Refugee Act of 1980, § 101(a), Pub. L. No. 96-212, 94 Stat. 102 (1980). It is codified in various sections of the INA.
- 35. The INA gives the Attorney General or the Secretary of Homeland Security discretion to grant asylum to noncitizens who satisfy the definition of "refugee." Under that definition, individuals generally are eligible for asylum if they have experienced past persecution or have a well-founded fear of future persecution on account of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion and if they are unable or unwilling to return to and avail themselves of the protection of their country of origin because of that persecution or fear. 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(42)(A).
- 36. The right to apply for asylum is nondiscretionary. Subject to limited exceptions, the Refugee Act affords a right to apply for asylum to any noncitizen "who is physically present in the United States or who arrives in the United States[,] whether or not at a designated port of arrival . . . , irrespective of such [noncitizen]'s status." 8 U.S.C. § 1158(a)(1).

- 37. Because of the life-or-death stakes, the statutory right to apply for asylum is robust. It includes the right to legal representation, <sup>13</sup> at no expense to the government, see 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(b)(4)(A), 1362; the right to notice of the right to legal representation, see 8 U.S.C. § 1158(d)(4); the right to access information in support of an application, see 8 U.S.C. § 1158(b)(1)(B) (placing the burden on the applicant to present evidence to establish eligibility); the right to appeal a determination by an immigration judge, see 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(5) (referencing the right to appeal); the right to petition federal circuit courts for judicial review of a final order of removal, see 8 U.S.C. § 1252(b); and the right to move to reopen proceedings or reconsider a decision regarding removability, see 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(6)-(7).
- 38. The right to seek asylum also includes the right to uniform treatment by the U.S. government. Through the Refugee Act, the U.S. government must "establish a uniform procedure for passing upon an asylum application." S. Rep. No. 256, 96th Cong., 2d Sess. (1980), reprinted in 1980 U.S.C.C.A.N. 141, 149; see also Orantes-Hernandez v. Smith, 541 F. Supp. 351, 375 (C.D. Cal. 1982) (acknowledging the emphasis that Congress placed on the uniform, nondiscriminatory treatment of refugees).
- 39. Consistent with the principle of non-refoulement at the heart of the Refugee Act, the INA further provides that noncitizens who are not eligible for asylum are nonetheless protected from return to a country where it is more likely than not that their "life or freedom would be threatened . . . because of [their] race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion." 8 U.S.C. § 1231(b)(3)(A). Noncitizens also may not be returned to a country where they are more likely than not to be tortured. 8 C.F.R. §§ 1208.16–1208.19.

&lt;sup>13</sup> Plaintiffs use "legal representation" interchangeably with "counsel" given that the regulations promulgated by the Department of Justice allow for representation by non-attorney accredited representatives, law students, and other reputable individuals. 8 C.F.R. § 1292.1(a).

B. The Right to Access Legal Representation for the Purpose of Applying for Asylum

- 40. Both the INA and the Fifth Amendment guarantee noncitizens seeking asylum the right to meaningfully access legal representation at no expense to the government. See supra ¶ 37; Biwot v. Gonzales, 403 F.3d 1094, 1098 (9th Cir. 2005).
- 41. Asylum law is complex, and the stakes involve life and death. Legal services organizations, including Organizational Plaintiffs, therefore play a particularly important role in assisting persons fleeing persecution who are seeking asylum.
- 42. The burden of proof on applicants is high in asylum proceedings. Asylum applications require detailed, fact-specific submissions containing evidence related to a noncitizen's fear of persecution on account of a protected ground, and evidence showing that fear is objectively reasonable. Legal service providers, including Organizational Plaintiffs, must allow time for relationship-building so that their clients trust them enough to share sensitive, frequently traumatic, past experiences. For clients suffering the effects of severe trauma, Organizational Plaintiffs must invest additional time and resources to build these relationships. Organizational Plaintiffs often must engage experts to provide testimony on country conditions or to corroborate the injuries of clients who have survived past persecution. In each case, Organizational Plaintiffs must coordinate all these pieces while also ensuring that they are zealously representing their clients by developing rigorous legal arguments, submitting legal briefs, and complying with complex procedures.
- 43. Legal representation strongly affects the outcome of asylum applications. Represented noncitizens detained in the United States are over ten times more likely to succeed in their immigration cases than those who appear pro se.<sup>14</sup> Non-detained noncitizens in the United States who have legal representation are over five times more likely to succeed in their cases than those who appear pro se.<sup>15</sup>

&lt;sup>14</sup> Ingrid V. Eagly & Steven Shafer, A National Study of Access to Counsel in Immigration Court, 164 U. Penn. L. Rev. 1, 9 (Dec. 2015), https://bit.ly/3osTJgL.

<sup>15</sup> Id. at 49.

- 44. Before the Protocols, the right to apply for asylum, which necessarily includes the right to access legal representation for this purpose, was effectuated by providing affected noncitizens with certain other rights and access to certain benefits. Those rights and benefits included:
  - (a) Access to immigration attorneys, accredited representatives, and nongovernmental organizations ("NGOs") registered to provide asylum support in the United States. See 8 C.F.R. § 1292.11 (recognizing over 750 NGOs providing asylum support in the United States).
  - (b) Access to a list of pro bono legal service providers maintained by the Executive Office for Immigration Review ("EOIR"). See 8 U.S.C. § 1158(d)(4)(B); 8 C.F.R. § 1003.61(b); see also 8 C.F.R. § 1240.10(a)(2) (noting obligation of immigration judges to advise individuals of availability of pro bono legal service providers).
  - (c) Access to law libraries, legal materials, and legal reference materials. See, e.g., ICE, Performance-Based National Detention Standards ("PBNDS") (rev. 2016), at 6.3, https://bit.ly/2HBW2gG (providing regular access for noncitizens in detention to law libraries and legal materials).
  - (d) Access to legal presentations and individual counseling about their cases. See, e.g., id. at 6.4 (providing noncitizens in detention with access to presentations on U.S. immigration law and procedures as well as individual counseling after a group presentation to discuss cases).
  - (e) The right to make free local calls to pro bono legal service providers on EOIR's list. See, e.g., id. at 5.6(II)(7), (V)(E) (referring to detained individuals' right to make unlimited free calls to pro bono legal service providers on EOIR list).

45. With access to the above-described statutory and regulatory rights and benefits, nearly 80 percent of all asylum seekers appearing in immigration court are represented at their merits hearings, according to EOIR records.<sup>16</sup>

C. The Right to File a Motion to Reopen Immigration Proceedings

- 46. "The motion to reopen is an important safeguard intended to ensure a proper and lawful disposition of immigration proceedings." Kucana v. Holder, 558 U.S. 233, 242 (2010) (internal quotations omitted); see also Dada v. Mukasey, 554 U.S. 1, 14 (2008) (describing the motion to reopen as "a statutory form of relief available" to noncitizens). In adjudicating motions to reopen, immigration judges must consider whether the parties were provided "a fair opportunity" to present their case. See INS v. Abudu, 485 U.S. 94, 107 (1988). An immigration court cannot deny a meritorious statutory motion to reopen that is based on errors affecting the lawfulness and propriety of a removal decision, where the immigration relief sought is nondiscretionary.<sup>17</sup>
- 47. Individuals with final orders of removal have the right to file a motion to reopen their immigration proceedings in order to present new evidence. 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(7).<sup>18</sup>
- 48. Individuals with in absentia removal orders may file a motion to reopen if they can prove deficiencies with notice, exceptional circumstances, and/or that they were in custody and the failure to appear was through no fault of their own. See 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(b)(5)(C). Under this statutory provision, an individual's removal is

&lt;sup>16</sup> TRAC Immigration, Asylum Decisions by Custody, Representation, Nationality, Location, Month and Year, Outcome and more (Nov. 2021), https://bit.ly/2G4neEk (filters set to "Immigration Court: All" and "Represented").

&lt;sup>17</sup> American Immigration Council, The Basics of Motions to Reopen EOIR-Issued Removal Orders, at 6–7 (Feb. 7, 2018), https://bit.ly/30N7wYC.

&lt;sup>18</sup> Individuals with final orders of removal also have the right to file a motion to reconsider a removal decision based on errors of fact or law. 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(6).

5

8

9

10 11

12 13

14

16

15

17 18

19

20

21 22

23 24

26

25

27 28

automatically stayed pending the disposition of a motion to reopen by an immigration judge. Id.

- 49. Motions to reopen in absentia removal orders based on lack of notice or custody status may be filed at any time, 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(b)(5)(C)(ii), as may asylumbased motions to reopen involving changed country conditions, § 1229a(c)(7)(C)(ii). All other motions to reopen are generally subject to both time and numerical limitations, unless they are filed jointly with DHS. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1229a(b)(5), (c)(6), (c)(7); 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.23(b)(4)(iv), 1003.2(c)(3)(iii).
- 50. Preparing a motion to reopen is generally a difficult and time-consuming task. All motions to reopen must "state the new facts that will be proven at a hearing to be held if the motion is granted, and shall be supported by affidavits or other evidentiary material." See 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(7)(B). Regulations require that a motion to reopen "for the purpose of submitting an application for relief must be accompanied by the appropriate application for relief and all supporting documentation." 8 C.F.R. § 1003.2(c)(1).
- Thorough preparation is particularly crucial because individuals are typically limited to a single motion to reopen. See 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(7)(A). An individual or their attorney usually must obtain the underlying A-file, the DHS file documenting the noncitizen's immigration history; the Record of Proceedings, a court file that contains hearing recordings and all documents filed with the immigration court; and new and previously unavailable evidence supporting the facts on which the motion is based. See Chhoeun v. Marin, 306 F. Supp. 3d 1147, 1156 (C.D. Cal. 2018) ("Filing a motion to reopen is a complicated and often prolonged process.").
- Throughout this process, attorneys must meet repeatedly with their clients to build trust and to gather the necessary facts.

II. CONDITIONS IN MEXICO BEFORE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE PROTOCOLS

- 53. When Defendants implemented the Protocols in January 2019, they were aware of the harms that asylum seekers subjected to the Protocols would face. According to the latest then-available U.S. Department of State Country Report on Human Rights Practices, "violence against migrants by government officers and organized criminal groups" was one of "[t]he most significant human rights issues" in Mexico. The State Department likewise has repeatedly reported that the dangers that forced many Central American migrants to flee their homes were also present in Mexico, as the presence of Central American gangs has "spread farther into the country and threatened migrants who had fled the same gangs in their home countries." Human rights groups have similarly reported the escalation of these dangers since 2017, noting that Mexican police and armed forces were often complicit in crimes against migrants. <sup>21</sup>
- 54. Since at least 2017, migrants in Mexico's northern border states have also been subject to disappearances, kidnappings, rape, trafficking, extortion, execution, and sexual and labor exploitation by non-state actors. Migrants in the immediate

&lt;sup>19</sup> U.S. Dep't of State, 2017 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices for 2018: Mexico, at 1 (Apr. 20, 2018) (hereafter "2017 State Dep't Mexico Human Rights Report"), https://bit.ly/3H6yNou; see also U.S. Dep't of State, 2018 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices: Mexico, at 19–20 (Mar. 13, 2019) (hereafter "2018 State Dep't Mexico Human Rights Report"), https://bit.ly/3qbgxTU (both 2017 and 2018 reports noting "victimization of migrants by criminal groups and in some cases by police, immigration officers, and customs officials" and reported kidnappings and extortion of migrants); U.S. Dep't of State, 2019 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices: Mexico, at 18 (Mar. 11, 2020) (hereafter "2019 State Dep't Mexico Human Rights Report"), https://bit.ly/32sKXZq.

&lt;sup>20</sup> See 2019 State Dep't Mexico Human Rights Report, supra n.19, at 18; 2018 State Dep't Mexico Human Rights Report, supra n.19, at 19; 2017 State Dep't Human Rights Report, supra n.19, at 21.

&lt;sup>21</sup> Human Rights First, Mexico: Still Not Safe for Refugees & Migrants (Mar. 23, 2018), https://bit.ly/3jwxMtw; Alberto Díaz-Cayeros, Beatriz Magatoni, and Vidal Romero, Caught in the Crossfire: The Geography of Extortion and Police Corruption in Mexico, Stanford Center for International Development, at 3–4 (Feb. 2015), https://stanford.io/3egRhpy.

- vicinity of a port of entry were—and still are—at particular risk of violence and exploitation. Those who seek refuge in shelters may be in particular danger. Some shelters are infiltrated by organized crime; others are sites of vandalism, burglary, threats, and kidnapping.
- 55. The Mexican border cities where Individual Plaintiffs were returned after being subjected to MPP, including Tijuana, Mexicali, Nuevo Laredo, and Matamoros, are among the most violent in Mexico.<sup>22</sup>
- 56. Had Defendants properly considered these conditions, of which they were well aware, before implementing the Protocols, they would necessarily have concluded that the Protocols would jeopardize Individual Plaintiffs' safety and security, obstruct their access to legal representation, and interfere with their ability to gather and present evidence, thereby preventing these individuals from meaningfully exercising their right to apply for asylum.

III. THE IMMEDIATE AND SEVERE REPERCUSSIONS OF THE PROTOCOLS

57. The Protocols trap individuals in Mexico under conditions so perilous that they replicate many of the dangers that prompted these individuals to flee their home countries. These conditions obstruct their ability to obtain legal representation and deny them access to the U.S. asylum system.

&lt;sup>22</sup> See e.g., U.S. Dep't of State, Overseas Security Advisory Council ("OSAC"), Mexico Country Security Report (Aug. 6, 2021), https://bit.ly/3E0sUXV (assessing Tijuana, Nuevo Laredo, and Matamoros as being "CRITICAL-threat locations"); U.S. Dep't of State, OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Tijuana (July 29, 2020), https://bit.ly/31LWIXP; U.S. Dep't of State, OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Matamoros (June 24, 2020), https://bit.ly/3oWnlFB; U.S. Dep't of State, OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Nuevo Laredo (June 24, 2020), https://bit.ly/3GKYsCP; see also Human Rights First, Human Rights Travesty: Biden Administration Embrace of Trump Asylum Expulsion Policy Endangers Lives, Wreaks Havoc ("Human Rights Travesty"), at 8 (Aug. 2021), https://bit.ly/3dXkLsH ("Nearly 83 percent of all asylum seekers stranded in the Mexican states bordering the United States reported that they had been the victim of an attack, attempted attack, or threats in the past month"); Wendy Fry, Drug violence continues to grip Tijuana, with most homicides of any city in Mexico, The San Diego Union-Tribune (Jan. 6, 2020), https://bit.ly/3owrG03.

- 58. Under the Protocols, Defendants forcibly returned asylum seekers to border zones in Mexico for the duration of their immigration court proceedings.<sup>23</sup>
- 59. Starting in January 2019, Defendants rapidly rolled out the Protocols' new asylum regime at ports of entry across the U.S.-Mexico border, with full knowledge of the devastating effects they would have on the lives of Individual Plaintiffs.<sup>24</sup> The repercussions of the Protocols on Individual Plaintiffs were immediate and have been long-lasting.
- 60. Individuals subjected to MPP were in the custody of DHS for the duration of their removal proceedings.<sup>25</sup> By trapping individuals under dangerous conditions in Mexico, the Protocols jeopardized Individual Plaintiffs' personal safety, prevented them from being able to fulfill basic human needs, and deprived them of the information and tools necessary to present their asylum claims. Because individuals subjected to the Protocols were required to present at a port of entry on each of their scheduled immigration court hearing dates, most were effectively confined to the

&lt;sup>23</sup> See DHS, Memorandum from Kirstjen M. Nielsen, Secretary of Homeland Security, Policy Guidance for Implementation of the Migrant Protection Protocols (Jan. 25, 2019), https://bit.ly/3kyjny7; see also CBP, Memorandum from Kevin K. McAleenan, Commissioner, Implementation of the Migrant Protection Protocols (Jan. 28, 2019), https://bit.ly/3e10Nws ("Section 235(b)(2)(C) of the INA provides that the Secretary of Homeland Security may return certain applicants for admission to the contiguous country from which they are arriving on land (whether or not at a designated port of entry) pending removal proceedings under Section 240 of the INA.").

&lt;sup>24</sup> See ICE, Memorandum from Ronald D. Vitiello, Deputy Director and Senior Official Performing the Duties of the Director, Implementation of the Migrant Protection Protocols (Feb. 12, 2019), https://bit.ly/3e1uM76 (implementing at San Ysidro, California). By January 2, 2020, DHS had implemented the Protocols at all ports of entry along the United States—Mexico border, including for persons apprehended between those ports. See Press Release, DHS, DHS Begins MPP Returns at Nogales Port of Entry in Arizona (Jan. 2, 2020), https://bit.ly/32kMxwp.

DHS regulations provide that individuals returned to Mexico under INA § 235(b)(2)(C) "shall be considered detained for a proceeding within the meaning of section 235(b) of the [Immigration and Nationality] Act and may be ordered removed in absentia by an immigration judge if the alien fails to appear for the hearing." 8 C.F.R. § 235.3(d). See also Order Denying Emergency Motions and Stay, ECF No. 135 at 10 (describing individuals subjected to MPP as "legally in the custody of the U.S. while in Mexico").

extreme danger zones near the border. The majority lived in crowded shelters, tent encampments, or other makeshift arrangements.

- 61. The Protocols also obstructed legal representation for all individuals subjected to them, blocking it entirely for over 90 percent of impacted individuals.<sup>26</sup> Defendant Mayorkas has acknowledged that in the implementation of MPP, "[i]nadequate access to counsel casts doubt on the reliability of removal proceeding[s]."<sup>27</sup>
- 62. Initially, Defendants provided individuals in MPP proceedings with a list of free or low-cost legal service providers in the United States, but most of those providers did not offer legal services to people trapped in Mexico. Thus, most individuals were left to navigate the complexities of U.S. asylum law on their own. Ill-equipped to do so, particularly without reliable communication mechanisms,<sup>28</sup> only 740 individuals in MPP out of 71,071 cases, or 1 percent, were granted relief from removal.<sup>29</sup> Prior to MPP, the general "relief granted rate" for Northern Triangle (Guatemala, Honduras, and El Salvador) asylum-related claims originating in border encounters was more than 26 times greater.<sup>30</sup> DHS has conceded that MPP "did not

&lt;sup>26</sup> As of October 2021, only 6,504 of the 71,071 individuals subjected to MPP had legal representation. See TRAC Immigration, Details on MPP, supra n.1 (filters set to "Hearing Location: All" and "Represented: Represented").

&lt;sup>27</sup> DHS, Second Termination Memo, supra n.5, at 17; see also id. at 3 (recognizing "difficulties in accessing counsel" as among the "significant issues with MPP").

While far from adequate, MPP 2.0's additional access to counsel provisions demonstrate that even elementary facilitation of this right was absent in the original version of MPP. For example, now "CBP will provide MPP enrollees information . . . about where they can locate places in Mexico to engage in telephonic or video communications with counsel." See DHS, Reimplementation Guidance, supra n.9, at 6.

&lt;sup>29</sup> See TRAC Immigration, Details on MPP, supra n.1 (filters set to "Hearing Location: All" and "Outcome: Removal Order").

&lt;sup>30</sup> DHS, Second Termination Memo, supra n.5, at 20–21. DHS concluded that "[t]hese discrepancies strongly suggest that at least some MPP enrollees with meritorious claims either abandoned or were unable to adequately present their claims given the conditions faced by migrants in Mexico and barriers to legal access." Id. at 21.

succeed in a sufficient number of cases at achieving the timely and reliable adjudication of migrants' removal proceedings."31

- 63. Defendants also thwarted the efforts of the few legal service providers who did represent individuals subjected to the Protocols—including Organizational Plaintiffs ImmDef and Jewish Family Service—to screen, advise, represent, or otherwise assist individuals subjected to the Protocols. In-person attorney-client consultations were limited to an illusory one-hour window before a scheduled hearing—an access-to-counsel flaw that DHS's second termination memo describes as "exceedingly challenging to fix." Even when these meetings could take place, legal representatives were forced to meet with their clients in a public setting, where they could not speak confidentially, no childcare was available, and tools necessary to provide meaningful legal services were unavailable. Unrepresented individuals were prohibited even from approaching legal representatives present in the immigration court to discuss possible representation.
- 64. In implementing the Protocols, Defendants failed to consider, examine, analyze, or address how the Protocols would impact the right of individuals to access counsel for purposes of representation during immigration proceedings and in related matters such as humanitarian parole applications, habeas petitions, and nonrefoulement interviews.
- 65. The Administrative Record for the Protocols' implementation—produced by Defendants in other litigation ("Law Lab v. Wolf Administrative Record")—does not include or refer to any studies, reports, interviews, or other communications evidencing that, in implementing the Protocols, Defendants considered the obstacles that individuals subjected to the Protocols would face in locating, communicating with, retaining, or consulting with legal representatives.

1

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

&lt;sup>31</sup> Id. at 21.

&lt;sup>32</sup> See ICE, Implementation of the Migrant Protection Protocols, supra n.23; DHS, Second Termination Memo, supra n.5, at 17.

- 66. The Law Lab v. Wolf Administrative Record does not reflect any consideration of the fact that many legal service providers were (and remain) unable to represent individuals who have been forced to remain in Mexico for the duration of their immigration proceedings.
- 67. The Law Lab v. Wolf Administrative Record also does not reflect any consideration of how individuals subjected to the Protocols would retain counsel before their scheduled hearings or potential obstacles they would face in identifying, retaining, and meaningfully accessing counsel, particularly for in-person consultations.
- 68. The Law Lab v. Wolf Administrative Record does not reflect any consideration by Defendants regarding how much time immigration attorneys would need to spend with their clients to prepare for an immigration hearing, or how providing only one hour before a scheduled hearing would ensure that individuals seeking asylum are afforded meaningful access to counsel. In implementing the Protocols, Defendants also failed to consider whether the courts had available space to allow for confidential conversations between client and counsel during this one-hour consultation period, a feature added to MPP 2.0 but conspicuously absent before.
- 69. The Law Lab v. Wolf Administrative Record does not include any reference to studies, reports, or benchmarking supporting Defendants' determination that one hour of consultation with an attorney immediately before a hearing was sufficient to ensure that individuals were provided meaningful access to counsel.

IV. THE ATTEMPTED TERMINATION OF MPP

70. On January 20, 2021, DHS announced the suspension of new enrollments into MPP.<sup>33</sup> On February 2, 2021, President Joseph R. Biden, Jr. issued an executive order directing the Secretary of Homeland Security to "promptly review and determine whether to terminate or modify" MPP.<sup>34</sup> The executive order directed that "the Secretary of Homeland Security shall promptly consider a phased strategy for the safe and orderly entry into the United States, consistent with public health and safety and capacity constraints, of those individuals who have been subjected to MPP for further processing of their asylum claims."<sup>35</sup>

&lt;sup>33</sup> Press Release, DHS, DHS Statement on the Suspension of New Enrollments in the Migrant Protection Protocols Program (Jan. 20, 2021), https://bit.ly/33ycbyC.

A. The First Termination Memo

- 71. On June 1, 2021, Defendant Mayorkas announced the termination of MPP. His memorandum directed DHS personnel to immediately "take all appropriate actions to terminate MPP, including taking all steps necessary to rescind implementing guidance and other directives issued to carry out MPP" and to "continue to participate in the ongoing phased strategy for the safe and orderly entry into the United States of individuals enrolled in MPP."
- 72. The first termination memo acknowledged that "the high percentage of cases completed through the entry of in absentia removal orders (approximately 44 percent, based on DHS data) raises questions . . . about the design and operation of the program, whether the process provided enrollees an adequate opportunity to appear for proceedings to present their claims for relief," and whether "conditions faced by some MPP enrollees in Mexico, including the lack of stable access to housing, income, and safety, resulted in the abandonment of potentially meritorious protection claims."<sup>37</sup>
- 73. The first termination memo clarified that "[t]he termination of MPP does not impact the status of individuals who were enrolled in MPP at any stage of their proceedings before EOIR or the phased entry process." 38

&lt;sup>34</sup> Exec. Order No. 14010, 86 Fed. Reg. 8,267 (Feb. 2, 2021), https://bit.ly/31Tc9AZ.

 $\parallel$  35 Id.

&lt;sup>36</sup> DHS, Termination of the Migrant Protection Protocols Program, supra n.4, at 7.

&lt;sup>37</sup> Id. at 4.

&lt;sup>38</sup> Id. at 7.

B. Texas v. Biden Injunction

74. On August 13, 2021, the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas permanently enjoined the June 1 termination memo and ordered the government:

to enforce and implement MPP in good faith until such a time as it has been lawfully rescinded in compliance with the APA and until such a time as the federal government has sufficient detention capacity to detain all aliens subject to mandatory detention under [INA] Section 1255 [sic] without releasing any aliens because of a lack of detention resources.<sup>39</sup>

75. The decision to terminate MPP and the Northern District of Texas's injunction only impact future placements into MPP 2.0. They do not impact individuals, like Individual Plaintiffs, who were already subjected to the prior iteration of MPP and received removal orders or had their cases terminated. The decision to terminate MPP and the Northern District of Texas's injunction do not impact the federal government's authority to parole individuals into the United States under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5).<sup>40</sup>

C. The Second Termination Memo

76. On October 29, 2021, Defendant Mayorkas issued a second termination memo, accompanied by a 39-page explanation, which concluded that "there are inherent problems with the program that no amount of resources can sufficiently fix." Ultimately, "[t]he integrity of the nation's immigration system should be assessed by whether immigration proceedings achieve fair and just outcomes, both for individuals who merit relief and those who do not. In the Secretary's judgment, the data show that MPP generally failed to meet that bar."<sup>42</sup>

&lt;sup>39</sup> Texas v. Biden, No. 2:21-CV-067-Z, 2021 WL 3603341, at *27 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 13, 2021) (emphases in original). On August 19, 2021, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit denied the government's application to stay the district court's order. Texas v. Biden, 10 F.4th 538 (5th Cir. 2021). On August 24, 2021, the Supreme Court denied the government's application to stay the district court's order. Biden v. Texas, No. 21A21, 2021 WL 3732667 (U.S. Aug. 24, 2021). On December 13, 2021, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court's judgment and denied the Government's motion to vacate and remand for further proceedings.

&lt;sup>40</sup> See Texas v. Biden, 10 F.4th at 558 (stating that the district court's injunction does not restrict DHS's parole discretion but forbids "simply releas[ing] every alien described in [8 U.S.C.] § 1225 en masse into the United States").

&lt;sup>41</sup> DHS, Second Termination Memo, supra n.5, at 38.

77. The memo underscored that "[t]he difficulties that MPP enrollees faced in Mexico, including the threat of violence and kidnapping, coupled with inadequate and unreliable access to food and shelter, likely contributed to people placed in MPP choosing to forego further immigration court proceedings regardless of whether their cases had merit." Nevertheless, citing compulsion from the district court injunction in Texas v. Biden, Defendants restarted a new, expanded version of MPP on December 8, 2021.<sup>44</sup>

V. THE SUSPENDED MPP WIND-DOWN

78. Following President Biden's February 2021 directive to reconsider MPP and before the first termination memo, DHS began implementing a process "meant to provide an opportunity to individuals who were returned to Mexico under MPP to proceed with their immigration proceedings from within the United States." On February 11, 2021, DHS announced that it would implement a process for individuals returned to Mexico under MPP whose cases were "pending" before EOIR, explaining that the process would exempt those "who do not have active immigration court

&lt;sup>42</sup> Id. at 18.

&lt;sup>43</sup> Id. at 20.

&lt;sup>44</sup> On the same day DHS issued the Second Termination Memo, the Department of Justice filed a "Suggestion of Mootness and Opposed Motion to Vacate the Judgment Below and Remand for Further Proceedings" with the Fifth Circuit in Texas v. Biden, requesting a remand to the district court in order to vacate its injunction. No. 21-10806 (5th Cir. Oct. 29, 2021). On December 13, 2021, the Fifth Circuit denied the Government's motion to vacate the judgment and affirmed the district court's August 13, 2021 judgment granting a permanent injunction against the termination of MPP. Texas v. Biden, No. 21-10806, 2021 WL 5882670 (5th Cir. Dec. 13, 2021).

&lt;sup>45</sup> DHS, Migrant Protection Protocols (Biden Administration Archive), https://bit.ly/3snf7IS (accessed Dec. 20, 2021) (in "What happens when my immigration case is completed?" drop-down text).

- cases."<sup>46</sup> Defendant Mayorkas later reiterated the importance of the wind-down because those with active MPP cases would otherwise be "denied a chance to seek protection."<sup>47</sup>
- 79. On February 26, 2021, Defendants began formally winding down MPP. In order to return to the United States, DHS required individuals who qualified to register with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees ("UNHCR"). UNHCR would then contact those individuals, process their cases, direct eligible individuals to report to a specified location for COVID-19 testing, and transport them to the port of entry for processing into the United States.
- 80. The roll-out of the MPP wind-down was poorly communicated and implemented, resulting in widespread confusion, pervasive misinformation, and frequent missteps that further endangered the safety of tens of thousands of affected asylum seekers.
- 81. On June 23, 2021, DHS announced that it was expanding processing of individuals subjected to MPP into the United States to include terminated cases and establishing a streamlined process for individuals with in absentia orders to seek reopening of their cases by submitting joint motions to reopen.

A. Core Components of the MPP Wind-Down

- 82. Two core components of Defendants' MPP wind-down were the Reopened Case Policy and the Terminated Case Policy.
- 83. Pursuant to the Reopened Case Policy, individuals subjected to MPP who had received final orders of removal, including in absentia final removal orders, were eligible to be processed into the United States only if their cases had been reopened

&lt;sup>46</sup> Press Release, DHS, DHS Announces Process to Address Individuals in Mexico with Active MPP Cases (Feb. 11, 2021), https://bit.ly/3pZwBrV; DHS, Press Release, DHS Statement on First Step in Process to Address Individuals in Mexico with Active MPP Cases (Feb. 19, 2021), https://bit.ly/3oV0ytM.

&lt;sup>47</sup> Press Release, DHS, Statement by Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro N. Mayorkas Regarding the Situation at the Southwest Border (Mar. 16, 2021), https://bit.ly/3s9Bi4V.

- 84. Under the Terminated Case Policy, individuals whose cases had been terminated while in MPP proceedings would be automatically eligible for processing into the United States. As individuals with terminated cases are not eligible to seek reopening of their cases, the Terminated Case Policy did not require these individuals to have reopened their cases prior to processing.
- 85. As of August 25, 2021, CBP had processed about half the individuals subjected to MPP who were eligible based on their "pending" immigration proceedings.<sup>48</sup>

B. Defendants' Sudden Suspension of the Wind-Down

- 86. In late August 2021, Defendants abruptly halted the wind-down. Consequently, no individuals who were subjected to MPP are currently eligible for processing into the United States on that basis.
- 87. Since the suspension of the wind-down, individuals subjected to MPP with in absentia removal orders have no access to the streamlined joint motion to reopen process established by Defendants' expanded wind-down. Individuals with final removal orders, whether issued in absentia or otherwise, now must file a motion to reopen through the typical statutory process in order to restart their immigration proceedings.

&lt;sup>48</sup> See DHS, Second Termination Memo, supra n.5, at 10 (identifying "about 13,000 individuals [who] were processed into the United States to participate in Section 240 removal proceedings as a result of this process"); TRAC Immigration, Details on MPP, supra n.1 (filters set to "Hearing Location: All" and "Outcome: Pending") (noting 25,684 individuals subjected to MPP with "pending" immigration proceedings).

- 88. As discussed supra in Section I.C, filing a motion to reopen is a complex process that is nearly impossible to navigate from outside the United States without adequate access to legal representation. Individuals are required to include with their motion to reopen an application for the relief they seek—a nearly insurmountable requirement for individuals subjected to MPP and still outside the United States, who typically lack the resources and expertise to accurately fill out an English-only asylum application.<sup>49</sup> In the unlikely event that an individual stranded in Mexico is able to find counsel, their legal representative will face serious obstacles to obtaining the necessary signatures to review their client's A-file and record of proceedings and to meeting confidentially with their client to review these documents and discuss the facts and circumstances that will inform the motion. For individuals subjected to MPP and still stranded outside the United States, each of the typical steps to filing a motion to reopen is thus fraught with barriers.
- 89. Like individuals with final orders of removal, individuals with terminated MPP cases must seek to reactivate their cases from outside the United States. Yet the latter group has no clear process to get their cases back on the docket. Following the suspension of the wind-down, these individuals have three options: attempt to start a new case by presenting themselves at a port of entry and expressing a desire to seek asylum, appeal the termination decision to the BIA, or request that DHS reissue their Notice to Appear.
- 90. Currently, DHS officials generally treat individuals who present at a port of entry and express a desire to seek asylum in one of several ways: expulsion pursuant to Title 42 (unless they meet one of the enumerated Title 42 exemptions);<sup>50</sup> placement in expedited removal proceedings, in which case they can seek asylum only after passing a credible fear interview; placement directly in removal proceedings under INA § 240; or, as of December 8, 2021, placement into MPP 2.0 for individuals from Western hemisphere countries.

&lt;sup>49</sup> See Niz-Chavez v. Garland, 141 S. Ct. 1474, 1485 (2021) ("Asylum applicants must use a 12-page form and comply with 14 single-spaced pages of instructions.").

- 91. Legal representation is critical for BIA appeals of decisions to terminate proceedings. Indeed, the BIA Practice Manual states that "[d]ue to the complexity of the immigration and nationality laws, the Board recommends that those who can obtain professional representation do so."51 In fiscal year 2021, individuals were represented in 80 percent of completed appeals and 90 percent of appeals that remained pending,52 demonstrating the infrequency of pro se BIA appeals. The need for representation is particularly acute in cases where individuals have missed the deadlines to file a notice of appeal or a supporting legal brief and must establish equitable tolling for the appeal to be accepted. Upon information and belief, this predicament is common for individuals with terminated MPP cases, who are often unaware of the relevant deadlines and the requirements for appeal to the BIA.
- 92. Upon information and belief, DHS is not responding to requests by individuals with terminated cases for reissuance of a Notice to Appear.
- 93. In addition to these routes, individuals with terminated cases or final orders of removal, including in absentia orders, may seek entry into the United States by applying for humanitarian parole under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5). However, upon information and belief, DHS is exercising its humanitarian parole discretion exceptionally narrowly.

&lt;sup>50</sup> The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Title 42 travel restrictions prevent certain individuals in Mexico, including asylum seekers, from entering the United States. See 85 Fed. Reg. 17,060, 17,061 (Mar. 26, 2020).

&lt;sup>51</sup> Board of Immigration Appeals Practice Manual § 2.2(a) (Oct. 5, 2020).

&lt;sup>52</sup> EOIR Adjudication Statistics, Current Representation Rates (Oct. 19, 2021), https://bit.ly/3edUPZI.

1

6 7

8 9

11 12

10

13 14

15

16

17 18

19

20 21

23 24

22

27

28

25 26

The Protocols trapped Individual Plaintiffs and others similarly situated 94. in dangerous zones and transit corridors in Mexico, jeopardizing their safety, denying them basic human needs, and preventing them from accessing legal assistance. These conditions deprived individuals subjected to MPP of a meaningful opportunity to present their claims for asylum and other relief.

- Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals remain stranded outside the United States with minimal access to legal representation. Individuals with final removal orders can pursue their claims only if they succeed in reopening their cases through the complex process described in Section I.C, supra. And, following DHS's suspension of the wind-down, individuals with terminated MPP cases can pursue their asylum claims only by presenting themselves at a port of entry and attempting to restart the process, appealing to the BIA, or convincing DHS to reissue their Notice to Appear.
- 96. Complicating the situation further, Defendants' implementation of MPP has thwarted the efforts of legal service providers, including Organizational Plaintiffs ImmDef and Jewish Family Service, to provide legal representation and other assistance to individuals subjected to MPP.

Through the Protocols, Defendants Have Threatened Individuals' Α. Safety and Survival

In order to access their immigration court hearings, individuals subjected to MPP regularly had to move through zones controlled by violent criminal organizations in order to present themselves at designated ports of entry in the middle of the night. After their hearings, they were generally returned to these dangerous areas to start the process again, in a repetitive cycle that Defendants imposed on asylum seekers for the duration of their MPP proceedings. Forced to focus on daily survival in an environment of uncertainty and fear, these individuals were unable to contact legal representatives, obtain evidence, contact witnesses, or take other steps necessary to effectively present their cases.

98. Defendants were aware that these dangerous conditions persisted throughout the time the Protocols were in effect and continue to date.<sup>53</sup> The 2019, 2020, and 2021 editions of the State Department's Trafficking in Persons Report warn that migrants in Mexico are vulnerable to human rights abuses and human trafficking, and that migrants from Central and South America are particularly vulnerable to forced labor and sex trafficking.<sup>54</sup> Since January 2021, the State Department has issued eight separate security alerts for Mexican border states warning of ongoing and increasing violence.<sup>55</sup> The State Department has reported continued victimization of migrants by criminal groups, police, immigration officers, and customs officials.<sup>56</sup> The Overseas Security Advisory Council (OSAC) of the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security has classified multiple border cities (including Tijuana, Nogales, Ciudad Juarez, Nuevo Laredo, and Matamoros) as "CRITICAL-threat locations."<sup>57</sup> Further, the Administrative Record provided by Defendants in

&lt;sup>53</sup> See supra Section II; see also U.S. Dep't of State, 2020 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices: Mexico at 21 (Mar. 30, 2021) (hereafter "2020 State Dep't Mexico Human Rights Report"), https://bit.ly/33yauRM (reporting "numerous instances of armed groups limiting the movements of asylum seekers and other migrants, including by threats and acts of kidnapping, extortion, and homicide," often with the complicity of local government or police); Human Rights First, Human Rights Travesty, supra n.22, at 4–5, 15–16; Human Rights Watch, US: Investigate 'Remain in Mexico' Program (June 2, 2020), https://bit.ly/322dp4L.

&lt;sup>54</sup> U.S. Dep't of State, 2021 Trafficking in Persons Report (June 2021) at 391, https://bit.ly/30GgQNK; U.S. Dep't of State, 2020 Trafficking in Persons Report (June 2020) at 349, https://bit.ly/3qctIEc; U.S. Dep't of State, 2019 Trafficking in Persons Report (June 2019) at 327, https://bit.ly/3FeGjNt.

&lt;sup>55</sup> U.S. Dept. of State, OSAC, Resources (filter set to "Mexico," then filter to "Travel Advisories and Alerts"), https://bit.ly/3ILM6vY.

&lt;sup>56</sup> U.S. Dep't of State, 2020 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices: Mexico, supra n.53, at 20.

&lt;sup>57</sup> U.S. Dep't of State, OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Tijuana (July 29, 2020), https://bit.ly/31LWIXP; OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Matamoros (June 24, 2020), https://bit.ly/3oWnlFB; OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Nuevo Laredo (June 24, 2020), https://bit.ly/3GKYsCP; OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Nogales (June 24, 2020), https://bit.ly/3muh6r5;

Texas v. Biden includes numerous materials evidencing the immense danger faced by asylum seekers subjected to MPP.<sup>58</sup>

99. Documentation by the United States government, NGOs, and the media confirms the continued dangers faced by asylum seekers.<sup>59</sup> In August 2021, for example, Human Rights First identified 6,356 reports of attacks, including kidnappings, rape, human trafficking, and other violent assaults against asylum seekers and migrants stranded in Mexico since President Biden took office.<sup>60</sup> A number of these attacks were reportedly committed by, or with the acquiescence of, Mexican local and federal police.<sup>61</sup> As has been reported, "[a]reas in the north of [Mexico] have transformed into hunting grounds for criminal groups and security elements that prey on recent deportees and migrants."<sup>62</sup>

OSAC, Mexico 2020 Crime & Safety Report: Ciudad Juarez (June 24, 2020), https://bit.ly/3oX9fUi.

&lt;sup>58</sup> See Administrative Record at 374–425; 456–58; 468–87; 590–613, Texas v. Biden, 2:21-cv-0067-2 (N.D. Tex. June 22, 2021), ECF No. 61.

&lt;sup>59</sup> See e.g., U.S. Dep't of State, 2021 Trafficking in Persons Report: Mexico (July 2021), https://bit.ly/3q3Ds3x; Human Rights First, Failure to Protect: Biden Administration Continues Illegal Trump Policy to Block and Expel Asylum Seekers to Danger ("Failure to Protect") (Apr. 2021), https://bit.ly/3yuFgq0; Human Rights Watch, Mexico: Events of 2020 (2021), https://bit.ly/3sczgRv ("Criminal cartels, common criminals, and sometimes police and migration officials regularly target people migrating through Mexico to rob, kidnap, extort, rape, or kill them".); Stephanie Leutert, Migrant Kidnapping in Nuevo Laredo During MPP and Title 42, The University of Texas at Austin Strauss Center for International Security and Law (Dec. 2021), https://bit.ly/3p7UpL2 (analyzing kidnappings of 352 migrants in Nuevo Laredo between 2018 and 2021); David Agren, Remain in Mexico: Migrants Face Deadly Peril as Biden Restores Trump Policy, The Guardian (Dec. 3, 2021), https://bit.ly/3E4QkeP ("Under [MPP], first implemented by Trump, asylum seekers were left stranded in violent Mexican border cities where they were routinely targeted by organized crime groups for rape, robbery, extortion and abduction.").

&lt;sup>60</sup> Human Rights First, Human Rights Travesty, supra n.22, at 8.

&lt;sup>61</sup> Human Rights First, Tracker of Reported Attacks During the Biden Administration Against Asylum Seekers and Migrants Who Are Stranded in and/or Expelled to Mexico (Oct. 21, 2021), https://bit.ly/3q6MNaE; see also Human Rights First, Human Rights Travesty, supra n.22.

&lt;sup>62</sup> Ryan Devereaux, Biden's Border Agenda Collides With the Realities Of Mexico's Violence, The Intercept (June 7, 2021), https://bit.ly/3yuTZRH.

101. Asylum-seeking individuals who remain in Mexico must maintain a temporary legal status to avoid detention or deportation by Mexican authorities. If an individual leaves Mexico, Mexican authorities confiscate the document conferring that status at the time of their departure. Should such an individual need to reenter Mexico to access a port of entry, there is no guarantee that the Mexican government would grant them temporary legal status, without which the individual would risk detention or deportation while transiting through Mexico. Consequently, many individuals subjected to MPP feel compelled to stay in Mexico to preserve their chance of returning to the United States to pursue their asylum claims.

102. Dangerous and unstable conditions persist for many individuals subjected to the Protocols who remain stranded outside the United States, including Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals. Many of these individuals are still in Mexico. Some have sought safety in third countries, while others have been forced to return to their home countries, where they risk the very persecution that caused them to flee in the first place.

&lt;sup>63</sup> See, e.g., Human Rights First, Failure to Protect, supra n.59, at 28–31; Global Response Management, Migration in 2021: Has Anything Really Changed? (June 2021), https://bit.ly/321yPif; Tom K. Wong, Seeking Asylum: Part 2, at 4, U.S. Immigration Policy Center (Oct. 29, 2019), https://bit.ly/31NbfCu; see also Sumiko Keil, Migrant Shelter in Mexicali Desperate for Help Amid the Pandemic, KYMA & KECY (Aug. 6, 2020), https://bit.ly/3mtKMC1; Julia Ainsley, As COVID-19 Looms, Conditions for Migrants Stalled at U.S. Border Are a 'Disaster in the Making', NBC News (May 12, 2020), https://nbcnews.to/3231PZd (reporting that although Mexican law purports to guarantee access to health care, many low-income people are turned away from hospitals, and public health workers were blocked from visiting migrant shelters under COVID-19 stay-at-home orders).

&lt;sup>64</sup> Women's Refugee Commission, Asylum Denied: Remain in Mexico 2.0 (Dec. 2021), at 4, https://bit.ly/3E69VuY.

B. Through the Protocols, Defendants Have Obstructed Individuals' Access to the U.S. Asylum System

103. Individuals subjected to the Protocols who remain stranded outside the United States continue to face daunting barriers to vindicating their statutory and constitutional rights, including obstacles to accessing legal representation in pursuing their claims for asylum. See supra at Section III.

104. Being stranded outside the United States obstructs Individual Plaintiffs' ability to identify, retain, and consult with legal representatives familiar with U.S. immigration law. Many individuals lack consistent access to phone or internet service, making communication with legal service providers in the United States extremely challenging. Lack of access to technology has also prevented individuals in MPP from gathering required documentation and other evidence to support their asylum claims.

105. Given the critical nature of in-person meetings when representing asylum seekers, many qualified legal service providers have been reluctant to accept cases of people subjected to MPP due to the risks of traveling to dangerous border towns, as well as the time and expense involved.

106. Rates of legal representation of asylum seekers reflect the challenges imposed by MPP. According to EOIR records, from fiscal year 2001 through November 2021, over 80 percent of individuals who received decisions in their asylum cases had representation in their immigration proceedings. By contrast, 90 percent of individuals subjected to the Protocols were unrepresented in their proceedings. 66

&lt;sup>65</sup> As of November 2021, only 122,950 individuals (around 20 percent) who received decisions in their asylum cases were unrepresented. TRAC Immigration, Asylum Decisions, supra n.16 (filters set to "Immigration Court" and "Represented").

&lt;sup>66</sup> As of October 2021, only 7,273 (10 percent) of the 71,071 individuals subjected to MPP had legal representation. See TRAC Immigration, Details on MPP, supra n.1 (filters set to "Hearing Location: All" and "Represented: Represented").

Case 2:20-cv-09893-JGB-SHK Document 175 Filed 12/22/21 Page 40 of 100 Page ID #:2281

107. Even asylum seekers who have been able to secure some form of legal representation, like Individual Plaintiffs Chepo Doe, Reina Doe, and Carlos Doe, face serious barriers to communication with their representatives. Individuals often lack access to private spaces where they can have confidential conversations with attorneys or accredited representatives, either in person or by phone. This lack of confidentiality can lead individuals to withhold information that they are afraid to share within earshot of others and impedes trust-building between legal representatives and clients.

108. Given the high stakes in asylum cases, legal representation is critical to ensure that motions to reopen and BIA appeals comply with applicable requirements and that applicable claims are presented as completely as possible. Legal assistance is also essential to navigate the complicated process of restarting terminated cases through administrative avenues. However, by forcing Individual Plaintiffs and other similarly situated individuals to remain stranded in precarious circumstances outside the United States, Defendants have effectively deprived them of access to legal representation throughout their removal proceedings and thereby prevented them from pursing their asylum claims.

109. According to one report analyzing government data after the MPP wind-down began, "the likelihood of asylum seekers [subjected to MPP] being represented by an attorney increases after the person is paroled into the United States and increases the longer the person is in the United States."<sup>67</sup> Forty-four percent of the nearly 3,000 individuals subjected to MPP who were returned to the United States on or before January 31, 2021, were able to secure legal representation by April 2021, compared to just nine percent of individuals who remained stranded in Mexico.<sup>68</sup>

&lt;sup>67</sup> TRAC Immigration, Now Over 8,000 MPP Cases Transferred Into United States Under Biden (May 11, 2021), https://bit.ly/3q1Y6B6.

&lt;sup>68</sup> Id.

C. Defendants' Policies Harm Individual Plaintiffs

1. Plaintiff Lidia Doe

- 110. On or around May 15, 2019, Plaintiff Lidia Doe and her granddaughter crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.
- 111. Defendants apprehended and detained Lidia and her granddaughter for approximately three days. An officer served Lidia with a Notice to Appear and instructed her to present herself at the San Ysidro port of entry on July 23, 2019, for her first immigration hearing. Immigration officers provided Lidia with a list of pro bono attorneys before her release. Defendants then returned her and her granddaughter to Mexico pursuant to the Protocols. Defendants did not provide Lidia and her granddaughter with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.
- 112. Following their return to Mexico, Lidia and her granddaughter spent two weeks at a crowded migrant shelter in Mexicali. The shelter was filthy and reeked of marijuana. They often went hungry because Lidia initially had no income and they could not afford to buy food. Although Lidia eventually found work cleaning houses, she has not been able to work for the last month and a half due to severe pain resulting from chronic high blood pressure. Her lack of employment authorization has made it extremely difficult for her to find work that is less physically challenging than cleaning houses, and it was only until recently that she was able to secure a part-time job preparing food at a taco stand.
- 113. On July 23, 2019, Lidia and her granddaughter made the dangerous journey by bus to the San Ysidro port of entry for her first immigration hearing. She appeared in immigration court without representation. The immigration judge gave Lidia a list of free legal service organizations and advised her to find an attorney to represent her. After the hearing, Defendants returned Lidia and her granddaughter to Mexico with instructions to return to the San Ysidro port of entry on the day of her next hearing.

- 114. Lidia's attempts to contact the legal service providers on the list were unavailing. She was unable to reach any of them despite multiple attempts prior to each scheduled hearing.
- 115. Lidia and her granddaughter returned to the San Ysidro port of entry for subsequent hearings on August 28, 2019 and September 9, 2019. At each of these hearings, the immigration judge advised Lidia of her right to seek and retain counsel. After each hearing, Defendants again returned Lidia and her granddaughter to Mexico.
- 116. Lidia's next immigration court hearing was scheduled for March 9, 2020, but she was too sick to go. Lidia, who suffers from chronic high blood pressure, had been hospitalized two nights before her hearing due to a hypertensive crisis and was released from the hospital the day before her hearing. When Lidia failed to appear for her hearing, the immigration judge terminated her proceedings. Lidia does not know how to get her case back on the active docket.
- asylum proceedings were terminated. As foreigners without legal status in Mexico, they are extremely vulnerable to abuse. On one occasion, Lidia received a call from a man who identified himself as a lawyer and asked for her by name. The man informed Lidia that her request to enter the United States had been approved and requested contact information for her sponsor in the United States. After Lidia provided her son-in-law's contact information, the man convinced her son-in-law to send him $2,000, ostensibly to finalize Lidia's travel to the United States. The man subsequently demanded that Lidia's son-in-law send more money and threatened to harm Lidia and her granddaughter if he failed to do so. He also called Lidia directly to demand funds, threatening her that she would pay the consequences if she did not comply.
- 118. Lidia and her granddaughter both suffer from potentially life-threatening medical conditions. Lidia has chronic high blood pressure, which requires medication, and her granddaughter has a heart condition known as tachycardia. Their inconsistent access to prescribed medication and reliable medical care in Mexico put them at even greater risk. Nonetheless, Lidia has stayed in Mexico to ensure that she does not lose the chance to seek protection in the United States.

- 119. Without legal assistance, Lidia has faced significant challenges in navigating the U.S. asylum system. As a result, she fears that she will not be able to reopen her case on her own.
- 120. If permitted to return to the United States, Lidia would live with her son-in-law in Iowa.

2. Plaintiff Antonella Doe

- 121. In November 2018, Plaintiff Antonella Doe, her husband, and their two young daughters presented themselves at the San Ysidro port of entry to seek asylum. They were directed to join a waiting list and, for the next few months, spent hours every morning at the port of entry waiting for their number to be called.<sup>69</sup>
- 122. In February 2019, Antonella and her family were finally processed for entry into the United States.
- 123. Defendants detained Antonella and her family for approximately five days. Defendants did not ask them if they were seeking asylum or whether they were afraid to return to Mexico. Defendants then separated Antonella and her daughters from her husband.
- 124. While separated from her husband, Antonella was interviewed briefly by an immigration officer. She told the officer that she and her family were seeking asylum from Honduras and that they were afraid to return to Mexico. The officer laughed and began speaking to other immigration officers in English, a language that Antonella does not understand. The officer then presented Antonella with paperwork

&lt;sup>69</sup> CBP used a "metering" system to turn back asylum seekers at the border in an attempt to limit the number of individuals who were permitted to access asylum at ports of entry each day. This policy has since been declared unlawful. See Al Otro Lado, Inc. v. Wolf, No. 3:17-cv-02336-BAS-KSC (S.D. Cal.).

5

10

13 14

15 16

18

19

17

20 21

22 23

24 25

26 27

28

in English. Antonella felt compelled to sign the paperwork despite not understanding what it said. Defendants did not explain to Antonella that she and her family would be returned to Mexico.

- 125. Antonella and her daughters were reunited with her husband as they were boarding the van that would return them to Mexico. An immigration officer told everyone boarding the van that they had to attend a hearing on March 27, 2019. The officer then gave Antonella and her family a list of free legal service providers and advised them to call the attorneys on the list. Antonella and her family never received any instructions about how to appear for their hearing.
- 126. Defendants then returned Antonella and her family to Mexico pursuant to the Protocols. Defendants did not provide them with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.
- 127. A volunteer group assisted Antonella and her family in finding temporary accommodations in Mexico. However, Antonella's husband was sent to a men's shelter while she and her daughters were sent to a different shelter for women and children. Antonella and her family later found a more permanent shelter where they could stay together, but the conditions were so poor that they had to find another place to live.
- 128. Antonella made numerous calls to all the attorneys on the list she had received. Only a few answered. Most told Antonella they could not take her case because she and her family were in Mexico. One person spoke to her only in English, which Antonella did not understand, and then hung up.
- 129. Antonella and her family missed their March 27 hearing after the owner of the shelter they were staying in told them that they would not be allowed to enter the United States for her hearing because they lacked lawful status. On May 7, 2019, the immigration judge terminated Antonella's case. Antonella did not receive a decision or any notices from the court regarding the status of her case and until recently, believed her case was still pending.

- 130. Antonella has continued to search for an attorney to assist with her case. Even if they had an attorney, Antonella knows that communication would be difficult because she and her family cannot always afford access to internet, which they need to make calls and to send documents.
- 131. Antonella and her family have suffered violence and threats of violence throughout their time in Mexico. In approximately June or July 2020, Antonella and her family began living with a woman in Tijuana. The woman forced Antonella and her family, including Antonella's young daughters, to work for her without pay in exchange for housing. The woman verbally and physically abused Antonella and her daughters, and repeatedly threatened to report the family to the Mexican police if they disobeyed her or tried to leave the house. Antonella and her family were held against their will and forced to work for approximately a year and a half before they were able to escape. They currently live in fear that the woman or the Mexican police will find them and harm them.
- 132. Even though Antonella and her family are at risk of serious harm or death in Mexico, they have stayed there to ensure that they do not lose the chance to pursue their asylum case.
- 133. Antonella registered for expanded MPP processing with UNHCR in or around June or July 2021. On July 27, 2021, she received an email from UNHCR confirming her registration, but she received no further information.
- 134. Without legal assistance, Antonella has faced significant challenges in navigating the U.S. asylum system. As a result, she fears that she and her family will not be able to pursue their case on their own.
- 135. If permitted to return to the United States, Antonella and her family would live with her mother's friend in North Carolina.

3. Plaintiff Rodrigo Doe

136. On or around May 5, 2019, Plaintiff Rodrigo Doe crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.

- 137. Defendants apprehended and detained Rodrigo for approximately two days. Before returning him to Mexico, Defendants served Rodrigo with a Notice to Appear and instructed him to present himself at the San Ysidro port of entry on July 18, 2019 for his first immigration hearing. Defendants told Rodrigo that he had to wait in Mexico until his next hearing. Defendants did not provide him with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.
- 138. Following his return to Mexico, Rodrigo found a shelter in Tijuana where he could stay for 400 pesos (approximately $19) per week. He eventually found a job, where he must work double shifts six days a week to be able to pay his rent. He sometimes goes hungry because he does not have enough money to buy food.
- 139. On July 18, 2019, Rodrigo made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry at 9:00 a.m. for his first immigration court hearing. He had to travel on foot because he could not afford other transportation. Rodrigo appeared in immigration court without representation. The immigration judge gave him a list of free legal service providers and advised him to find an attorney to take his case. Rodrigo also received several other documents, which he could not understand because he cannot read in either English or Spanish. After the hearing, Defendants returned Rodrigo to Mexico.
- 140. Rodrigo called the attorneys on the list multiple times. When he called, either no one answered the phone, or he was told that they did not have capacity to take his case.
- 141. Rodrigo again made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry for his second immigration court hearing on August 13, 2019. He still did not have representation. At the hearing, the immigration judge gave him the asylum application form and instructed him to fill it out before his next hearing.
- 142. Rodrigo sought assistance from Al Otro Lado, a legal service provider in Tijuana, which helped him complete his asylum application in English. However, they were unable to represent him in his immigration proceedings.

143. Rodrigo once again made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry on September 10, 2019, for his third immigration court hearing. Rodrigo submitted his asylum application at this hearing.

- 144. Rodrigo's fourth hearing was scheduled for October 31, 2019. Unlike the prior three hearings, the notice Rodrigo had received at his prior hearing indicated that he had to be at the San Ysidro port of entry at 4:00 a.m. Aware that the road to the port of entry was too dangerous to walk in the dark, Rodrigo, with the assistance of a friend, booked a taxi the night before his hearing. However, the taxi never arrived, and Rodrigo, who is illiterate, was unable to call for another ride. Desperate to reach the port of entry, he began walking in the dark but quickly recognized the risks of walking through such a high-crime area and ran back to the shelter. When Rodrigo failed to appear for his hearing, the immigration judge terminated his case.
- 145. Rodrigo never received an update from the immigration court on the status of his case and did not realize that it had been terminated until earlier this year.
- 146. Rodrigo has continued to seek legal assistance in his case, to no avail. Because he cannot read, he relies primarily on recommendations from others. All the attorneys he has called have been unable take his case.
- 147. Rodrigo has suffered violence during his time in Mexico. In or around June 2021, he was assaulted while walking back to the shelter after work. Four men, one of whom had a gun, approached him. After one man hit Rodrigo in the face with a skateboard, the others directed him to lie face down on the ground and then stole his phone and wallet.
- 148. Since Rodrigo was robbed, he has been afraid to go outside. He does not leave the shelter except to go to work. In or around the middle of December 2021, Rodrigo was on his way home from work when his phone was stolen. He is terrified that he will be robbed or assaulted again because he lives in a dangerous area, where shootings and kidnappings are common.

4 5

6 7

8 9

10

11

12

13

14 15

17

16

18 19

20 21

22 23

24

25 26

27

28

149. Despite the risk of harm or death Rodrigo faces in Mexico, he has stayed there to ensure that he does not lose the chance to pursue his asylum case.

150. Rodrigo registered for expanded MPP processing with UNHCR at the beginning of 2021. It was only through the process of registering with UNHCR that Rodrigo discovered that his case had been terminated. Rodrigo received an email from UNHCR confirming that he was registered but never received any further information.

151. If permitted to return to the United States, Rodrigo would live with his mother-in-law in California.

Plaintiff Chepo Doe 4.

- 152. On February 26, 2019, Plaintiff Chepo Doe and his daughter presented themselves at the San Ysidro port of entry to seek asylum.
- 153. Defendants detained Chepo and his daughter for two days. During that time, an officer interviewed Chepo about his fear of returning to El Salvador. The officer told Chepo that because the laws had changed under President Trump, he would have to defend his case from Mexico. Defendants served Chepo with a Notice to Appear and other paperwork in English but provided him with no instructions on how to appear for his first hearing. Chepo learned that he would have to present at the San Ysidro port of entry on April 4, 2019 only after his brother explained the documents to him. On February 28, 2019, Defendants returned Chepo and his daughter to Mexico pursuant to the Protocols. Defendants did not provide them with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.
- 154. Following their return to Mexico, Chepo called all the attorneys on the list of free legal service providers he had received, as well as attorneys he found online. The few who picked up told him either that they did not travel to Mexico or that Chepo would be responsible for covering the cost of their airline tickets, an expense he could not afford. As a result, Chepo was unable to find representation before his first immigration hearing.

155. On April 4, 2019, Chepo and his daughter made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry. At the hearing, Chepo requested additional time to prepare his immigration case. The immigration judge scheduled his next hearing for May 13, 2019.

156. On May 13, 2019, Chepo and his daughter again made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry. The ICE officers who transported Chepo and his daughter to the immigration court told them not to speak to any attorneys in the courtroom. At the hearing, the immigration judge gave Chepo an asylum application and instructed him to complete it before his next hearing on or around July 25, 2019.

157. On or around July 25, 2019, Chepo and his daughter again made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry for their next hearing. The ICE officer who transported Chepo and his daughter to the immigration court again instructed him not to speak to any attorneys in the courtroom. However, when the officer briefly left the courtroom, Chepo approached an attorney from Organizational Plaintiff ImmDef to ask for her help. Chepo spoke to the attorney for only a few minutes but gave her his contact information.

158. At the hearing, Chepo submitted his asylum application. Although Chepo informed the immigration judge and an immigration officer that he and his daughter did not feel safe in Mexico, they were returned anyway.

159. Following their return to Mexico, the ImmDef attorney called Chepo to inform him that she could represent him. Around the same time, Chepo's daughter started experiencing stomach pain and fevers. They sought medical care from a doctor at a local pharmacy, who advised that Chepo's daughter needed a CT scan or an ultrasound, which were only available at the local hospital. They went to the hospital but were refused services because they were not Mexican citizens or residents.

160. During the last week of November 2019, Chepo's daughter's condition worsened. Her stomach pain was so severe that she cried for two or three days straight and began vomiting. Chepo and his daughter returned to the hospital but were again refused services.

- 161. On December 3, 2019, Chepo and his daughter once again made the dangerous journey to the port of entry and presented themselves for their third immigration hearing. They were represented by the attorney from Plaintiff ImmDef. At the hearing, Chepo answered questions about his identity, country of origin, and reasons for seeking asylum. He also presented evidence in support of his asylum claim. The immigration judge scheduled another hearing for February 25, 2020.
- 162. Following their return to Mexico that evening, Chepo's daughter began experiencing severe pain. Fearing that his daughter might die if she did not get medical care, Chepo made a desperate decision to take her back to El Salvador for treatment.
- 163. When they arrived in El Salvador, Chepo immediately sought medical care for his daughter. The doctors diagnosed her with necrotizing pancreatitis, a life-threatening condition that is incredibly rare in young people. Following emergency surgery, which lasted several hours, the doctor told Chepo that it was a miracle that his daughter had survived.
- 164. Chepo and his daughter could not return to Mexico to attend their February 25, 2020 hearing because of his daughter's ongoing need for medical care. Their attorney attended the hearing on their behalf, explained the circumstances, and asked the immigration judge to allow them to withdraw their asylum application. Instead, the immigration judge ordered Chepo and his daughter removed in absentia.
- 165. Since returning to El Salvador, Chepo has received death threats from the Barrio 18 gang. He and his daughter are currently living in a church out of concern for their safety. Chepo's daughter's health remains fragile, and Chepo must constantly monitor her symptoms.
- 166. If permitted to return to the United States, Chepo and his daughter would live with Chepo's brother in Alabama.

5. Plaintiff Yesenia Doe

167. On or around July 24, 2019, Plaintiff Yesenia Doe and her son crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.

An immigration officer interviewed Yesenia about her fear of returning to Honduras but did not ask her any questions regarding her fear of return to Mexico. When Yesenia expressed fear of returning to Mexico, the immigration officer told her that it was "Donald Trump's law," and that he could not help her. Defendants gave Yesenia several documents, which she did not understand because she does not speak English and has limited literacy. Defendants told Yesenia that she was being returned to Mexico but did not explain that she was being placed into the Migrant Protection Protocols or advise her to find a lawyer. Yesenia did not know if she was being deported to Mexico or could still seek asylum in the United States. Defendants then returned Yesenia and her son to Mexico pursuant to the Protocols. Defendants did not provide them with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.

169. When they arrived in Matamoros, Mexican authorities put Yesenia and her son on a bus to Monterrey. When the bus arrived at the Monterrey bus station at 1:30 a.m., there was no one to assist Yesenia and her son, who had none of their personal belongings because they had been confiscated by Defendants. They slept on the street that night.

170. The next night, a woman approached Yesenia and offered to take them somewhere safe. A car subsequently picked up Yesenia and her son, but Yesenia soon realized that they had been kidnapped. Yesenia and her son were taken to a house in Reynosa, where they were held with other migrants and surrounded by armed men. The men asked Yesenia for the phone numbers of her family in United States, but Yesenia responded that she had no family there and had lost her phone. The men threatened to force her son to work for them to pay for their ransom. Approximately four weeks later, Mexican police came to the house and freed Yesenia, her son, and the other migrants who had been held captive. Following their release, Yesenia and her son slept on the street for several nights because they had no money and no phone.

- 171. When Yesenia was finally able to look at the papers she had been given by Defendants, she did not understand most of what they said because she does not speak English and has limited literacy.
- 172. Although she knew that she was supposed to present herself at the Brownsville port of entry on September 26, 2019, she was terrified that she and her son would be kidnapped again. Out of desperation, Yesenia decided to return to Honduras in late August 2019, and missed her September 26, 2019 court hearing. When she failed to appear, the immigration judge ordered her removed in absentia.
- 173. In or around late September 2019, Yesenia and her son again fled Honduras after receiving death threats from the same gang that had originally forced them to flee. After traveling for about three months, during which they had to stop frequently to work or beg for money to cover their expenses, they finally arrived in Monterrey.
- 174. During their journey back to Mexico, Yesenia showed her court papers to a fellow traveler who explained that the appointment on September 26 had been for a hearing in immigration court. This was the first time that Yesenia understood that she had missed a court hearing, but she did not know how that would affect her case. She had no idea that she had been ordered removed or that she needed to find legal representation.
- 175. After arriving in Monterrey, Yesenia and her son found accommodations in a church where they remained for approximately a year. They were unable to go directly to the border due to limited funds. While they were saving money to resume their travel, Yesenia fell ill, likely with COVID-19, for an extended period.
- 176. In early January 2021, Yesenia and her son departed Monterrey for the border, but were kidnapped en route. The kidnappers, whom Yesenia believes to be affiliated with the Cartel del Golfo, locked them in a house for approximately three

177. Yesenia and her son were eventually freed after her family collected enough money to pay their ransom. The kidnappers took them to the bus station in Reynosa. Before leaving, the kidnappers took their photos and ordered Yesenia not to return to that area. The kidnappers informed Yesenia that they would circulate her photo widely so that everyone would know who she was and would be on the lookout for her.

178. Yesenia and her son then made their way back to Monterrey, where they remained in hiding for several months in the same church where they had previously lived. During that period, another individual staying at the church gave Yesenia the phone number of an attorney who assisted her in filing a request for a humanitarian exemption to Title 42. Yesenia encountered significant difficulties in communicating with the attorney due to poor cell service in Mexico, lack of funds to pay for phone minutes, and her inability to find quiet, confidential spaces where she could speak freely. Although her humanitarian exemption request was approved, immigration officers at the Eagle Pass port of entry ultimately refused to process Yesenia and her son into the United States because of their prior placement in MPP.

179. Shortly thereafter, Yesenia and her son moved to a house in Monterrey, where a woman offered to give them a room if Yesenia worked as her housekeeper. But in late November 2021, Yesenia and her son were forcibly evicted without their belongings. They slept on the street for several days before a group of nuns in Monterrey took them in.

180. Yesenia continues to experience severe pain in the left side of her body, and the left side of her face remains paralyzed.

- 181. Even though Yesenia and her son are at risk of serious harm or death in Mexico, they have stayed there so that they can attempt to pursue their asylum case.
- 182. With the assistance of the same attorney who had filed her humanitarian exemption request, Yesenia registered for expanded MPP processing in or around August 2021. She received an email from UNHCR confirming her registration but later learned that the wind-down process had been halted.
- 183. Yesenia has been unable to find counsel who can represent her in her removal proceedings and fears that she will be unable to reopen her case on her own.
- 184. If permitted to return to the United States, Yesenia would live with a friend in Texas.

6. Plaintiff Sofia Doe

- 185. On or around May 15, 2019, Plaintiff Sofia Doe, her husband, and their son crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.
- 186. Defendants detained Sofia and her family for eight days. After separating Sofia and her child from her husband, an immigration officer interviewed her about her fear of returning to Honduras. The officer informed her that the United States was not for people like her and that only important people are granted asylum. The officer did not ask Sofia about her fear of return to Mexico and insisted that she sign a document in English. When Sofia refused to sign the document because she did not understand it, the officer told her that she would be sent to Mexico anyway and not permitted to enter the United States.
- 187. Defendants served Sofia with a Notice to Appear and instructed her to present herself at the San Ysidro port of entry on August 12, 2021 for her first immigration hearing. Defendants then returned Sofia and her family to Mexico pursuant to the Protocols. Defendants did not provide Sofia with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.
- 188. Sofia and her family stayed temporarily with a family they had met on their way to the border. After a few months, Sofia's husband found a job that enabled them to rent a room. However, after Sofia's husband lost his job, they could no longer afford to pay rent and went to live in a shelter. They were able to rent another room beginning on or around June 2020, when Sofia's husband was able to find another job.

189. Since then, Sofia's husband has had a difficult time finding stable work due to pervasive animosity towards migrants in Mexico. Sofia cannot work because she must stay with her child, who has respiratory issues that require constant care and monitoring to make sure he can breathe.

190. On August 12, 2019, Sofia and her family made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry. They appeared in immigration court without legal representation. The immigration judge gave them a list of free legal service providers and advised them to bring their lawyer to their next hearing. They also received an asylum application form, which they were instructed to complete in English. After their hearing, Defendants returned Sofia and her family to Mexico with instructions to appear for their next hearing on September 11, 2019.

191. Sofia and her husband tried calling the numbers on the list many times, but no one answered. They also sought help from Al Otro Lado, which provided some assistance with their asylum application.

192. On September 11, 2019, Sofia and her family again made the dangerous journey to the San Ysidro port of entry for their second hearing. They again appeared without legal representation. When the immigration judge asked Sofia and her husband why they did not have a lawyer, they explained that they had not been able to reach anyone on the list of free legal service providers and could not afford to pay for a lawyer. The immigration judge told them that they had to find a lawyer in order for him to hear their case. Sofia and her husband attempted to file their asylum application, but the judge rejected their filing because it was incomplete. After the hearing, Defendants returned Sofia and her family to Mexico with instructions to appear for their next hearing on October 23, 2019.

193. Sofia and her family were unable to attend their third hearing on October 23, 2019 for medical reasons. Sofia was approximately three months into a high-risk pregnancy, and she started bleeding the night before the hearing. Sofia had just been released from the hospital with instructions to go on bed rest and return for a doctor's appointment in the morning. Having previously suffered a miscarriage, Sofia was terrified of losing her baby and followed the doctor's instructions. When Sofia failed to appear for her hearing, the immigration judge issued an in absentia removal order.

194. Sofia does not know how to seek reopening of her case or what evidence she would need to do so. She and her husband tried calling the numbers on the free legal service provider list again but have been unable to find legal representation. Even if they had counsel, Sofia knows that communication would be difficult because she cannot afford continuous access to the internet and the electricity in the area where she lives frequently goes out.

195. Sofia's family has faced violence or threats of imminent violence throughout their time in Mexico. In February 2021, Sofia's husband was assaulted at his workplace. He and Sofia tried to report the assault to the Mexican police, but the police never followed up with them.

196. On or around December 5, 2021, Sofia's husband disappeared. Neither she nor any of their family in Honduras or acquaintances in Mexico have heard from him since he left to look for work. A few days after he disappeared, Sofia tried to report him to the Mexican police as a missing person, but they told her to wait and see if he returned. Sofia fears that he has been deported, kidnapped, or worse. She is terrified for her husband and does not know how she will support herself and her child, whose condition has continued to deteriorate. Sofia rarely leaves the house where she and her husband rent a room because they live in a dangerous area. Several weeks ago, a couple was killed a block away from where Sofia lives.

197. Even though Sofia is at risk of serious harm or death in Mexico, she has stayed there to ensure that she does not lose the chance to pursue her asylum case.

198. Sofia's husband registered the family for expanded MPP processing with UNHCR in or around June 2021, but, to Sofia's knowledge, they have received no further information.

199. If permitted to return to the United States, Sofia and her family would live with her sister-in-law in California.

7. Plaintiff Gabriela Doe

200. On or around July 12, 2019, Plaintiff Gabriela Doe and her daughter crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.

201. Defendants detained Gabriela and her daughter for approximately two days. During that time, an immigration officer asked Gabriela about her fear of returning to Honduras. Defendants served Gabriela with a Notice to Appear and instructed her to present herself at the Laredo port of entry on September 16, 2019, for her first immigration hearing.

202. Gabriela told the immigration officers that she feared returning to Mexico because she had been kidnapped and threatened by what she believes to be the Cartel del Golfo on her way to the border. The officers responded by telling her she had to return to Mexico to wait for her immigration hearing and instructing her to present herself at the Laredo port of entry on September 16, 2019. Defendants then returned Gabriela and her daughter to Mexico pursuant to the Protocols. Defendants did not provide her with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.

203. Following their return to Nuevo Laredo, Gabriela and her daughter had nowhere to go. Mexican immigration officials put them on a bus to Monterrey. When they arrived late at night, Gabriela had to beg on the street to find shelter for the night. A man let Gabriela and her daughter stay on the floor of his house, but Gabriela felt so unsafe that she and her daughter left after only a few days. Fortunately, they later found a room to rent.

204. On September 16, 2019, Gabriela made the dangerous journey from Monterrey to Nuevo Laredo. To arrive at 4:30 a.m. at the Laredo port of entry, Gabriela and her daughter had to leave Monterrey at around midnight. Gabriela appeared in immigration court without legal representation. The immigration judge gave her a list of legal service providers and advised her to find an attorney to take her case. The immigration judge also provided Gabriela with an asylum application and instructed her to complete and submit it in English at her next hearing. After her hearing, Defendants returned Gabriela and her daughter to Mexico with instructions to appear for her next hearing on October 16, 2019.

205. Gabriela called every attorney on the list multiple times, but no one answered her calls. She also called what she believed to be a U.S. immigration hotline number to request additional phone numbers of free legal service providers, but she never reached anyone. Because she was unable to obtain legal assistance, Gabriela attempted to fill out her asylum application by herself, painstakingly translating the items on the English-language form on her phone.

206. Gabriela attended her second immigration court hearing on October 16, 2019. As before, she and her daughter left Monterrey around midnight in order to arrive at the Laredo port of entry by 4:30 a.m. At her second hearing, Gabriela attempted to submit her asylum application, but the immigration judge rejected it as incomplete and instructed Gabriela to return to court in November with a completed application.

207. After her second hearing, Gabriela attempted to further complete her asylum application by herself, using her phone to translate her answers. Gabriela submitted her asylum application at her third immigration court hearing on November 6, 2019. Once again, she and her daughter had to leave Monterrey at around midnight in order to arrive at the Laredo port of entry by 4:30 a.m. After her third hearing, Defendants returned Gabriela and her daughter to Mexico with instructions to appear for another hearing on December 12, 2019.

208. On December 12, 2019, Gabriela and her daughter once again made the dangerous journey to the Laredo port of entry for her fourth hearing, again leaving

- 209. Almost immediately following their return to Mexico, Gabriela and her daughter were seized by what she believes to be members of the Noroeste Cartel and forced into a car. These men drove Gabriela and her daughter around for several hours, asking Gabriela for phone numbers of individuals from whom they could demand a ransom. They hit her face so hard that her lip split and they pulled her repeatedly by her hair. The cartel members eventually released Gabriela and her daughter, threatening to kill Gabriela if they ever saw her in Nuevo Laredo again.
- 210. After being released, Gabriela sought help from Mexican immigration officials, who directed her to a local pastor. Fearing for their safety, Gabriela and her daughter remained in hiding in the pastor's shelter for almost a year. Because she was unable to file a timely notice of appeal to the BIA, Gabriela's order of removal became final.
- 211. In March 2021, Gabriela returned to the Laredo port of entry and explained to U.S. immigration officers that she had been kidnapped and forced into hiding on the day she was supposed to present at the Laredo port of entry. The officers told her that she could not enter the United States because the immigration judge had already denied her case.
- 212. Gabriela has faced violence and threats of imminent violence throughout her time in Mexico. She currently lives in the same shelter in Nuevo Laredo that she helps to run. However, she has recently come under threat because of her work for the shelter. In approximately early December 2021, a man threatened Gabriela and a

- co-worker in the shelter, telling them that he worked with the Noroeste Cartel and that they would pay for their work with the shelter. Since then, cartel members in Nuevo Laredo have followed Gabriela, fired gunshots at and around the shelter where she lives, and monitored the entrance to the shelter. Gabriela does not leave the shelter out of fear for her safety.
- 213. The pastor who runs the shelter and an attorney who occasionally visits the shelter have explained to Gabriela that she would have to reopen her case in order to pursue her asylum claim. However, she does not know how to initiate that process or what evidence she would need to do so. Gabriela has continued to search for an attorney to assist with her case, but to no avail.
- 214. Even though Gabriela is at risk of serious harm or death in Mexico, she has stayed there to ensure that she does not lose the chance to pursue her asylum case.
- 215. If permitted to return to the United States, Gabriela would live with a friend in Texas.

8. Plaintiff Ariana Doe

- 216. Plaintiff Ariana Doe and her daughter presented themselves at the Brownsville port of entry in September 2019 to seek asylum.
- 217. Defendants detained Ariana and her daughter for approximately one week. Defendants then served Ariana with a Notice to Appear and instructed her to return to the port of entry for her first immigration hearing on December 3, 2019. While she was detained, Ariana developed a serious stomach infection for which she had to be hospitalized. Although Ariana told immigration officers that she feared returning to Mexico, Defendants still sent her and her daughter back under the Protocols. Defendants recommended that Ariana find legal representation but did not tell her how to do so. They also did not provide Ariana and her daughter with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.
- 218. Ariana felt "abandoned like a dog" on the Mexican side of the border. She and her daughter were forced to sleep on the ground by the river for approximately a week until a humanitarian aid group gave them a tent. Eventually, Ariana found work in a beauty salon that enabled her to rent a small apartment, where she and her daughter slept on the floor because they could not afford furniture.

219. In December 2019, Ariana and her daughter made the dangerous journey to the Brownsville port of entry for her first immigration hearing. She appeared in immigration court without legal representation. At the hearing, the immigration judge spoke by webcam to approximately fifteen asylum seekers in the same room. Ariana received an asylum application, which she was instructed to complete in English and submit at her next hearing, along with any relevant evidence in support of her asylum claim. Ariana was also given a list of legal service providers to call for possible representation and informed that her next hearing would be on January 2, 2020. Defendants then returned Ariana and her daughter to Mexico under the Protocols.

220. Ariana called every attorney on the list multiple times but was not able to reach any of them. Unable to find a lawyer to represent her, Ariana prepared her asylum application herself. After completing the application in Spanish and attaching the evidence she was able to gather, she paid to have these documents translated into English, a language that she does not speak or understand. She thus had no way of knowing whether the translation was accurate.

221. In January 2020, Ariana and her daughter again made the dangerous journey to the Brownsville port of entry for her next immigration hearing. Ariana did not understand that this hearing would address the merits of her asylum application. Ariana represented herself at the hearing. At the end of the hearing, the immigration judge denied her asylum claim. Defendants again returned Ariana and her daughter to Mexico under the Protocols.

222. Ariana submitted a timely notice of appeal to the BIA but was unable to submit a supporting brief because she did not know how to do so and, despite diligent efforts, was still unable to find legal representation. As a result, her appeal was dismissed, and her order of removal became final.

223. Ariana does not know how to seek reopening of her case or what evidence she would need to do so.

224. Since their asylum claim was denied, Ariana and her daughter have been living in Matamoros, where crime rates are high, gang violence is prevalent, and dead bodies are routinely found within walking distance of their apartment. A powerful cartel member in Matamoros has repeatedly sexually propositioned Ariana, forcing her to hide to avoid contact with him. Ariana and her daughter feel so unsafe that they leave their apartment only to go to Ariana's workplace and to buy food. Even though Ariana and her daughter face a risk of serious harm in Mexico, they have stayed there to ensure that they do not lose a chance to pursue their asylum case.

225. If permitted to return to the United States, they would live with family in Massachusetts.

9. Plaintiff Francisco Doe

226. In late July 2019, Plaintiff Francisco Doe crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.

227. Defendants detained Francisco for approximately seven days. Defendants then served Francisco with a Notice to Appear and instructed him to return to the Brownsville port of entry in October 2019 for his first immigration hearing. Defendants told Francisco that he had to wait in Mexico, but did not explain how to appear for his hearing. Although Francisco expressed a fear of returning to Mexico, Defendants still sent him back pursuant to the Protocols. Defendants did not provide him with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.

228. During his first three months in Matamoros, Francisco was homeless and unemployed. Fortunately, he met people who were able to understand the documents Defendants had given him and explained when and where he had to go for his immigration hearing.

229. In October 2019, Francisco made the dangerous journey to the Brownsville port of entry on the date of his hearing. He left his home before 3 a.m.

so he could arrive at the port of entry four hours before his hearing, as required. The immigration judge gave Francisco an asylum application in English, which he was instructed to complete in English and submit at his next hearing on November 7, 2019. The immigration judge also gave Francisco a list of legal service providers to contact regarding possible representation. Although Francisco told the immigration judge that he feared returning to Mexico, Defendants sent him back with instructions to appear for his next hearing.

- 230. Upon returning to Mexico, Francisco called the attorneys on the list, but most did not answer or return his calls. The few who responded said they did not assist individuals outside the United States.
- 231. After being homeless for three months, Francisco eventually found work in Matamoros and rented a room with some coworkers.
- 232. In November 2019, Francisco again made the dangerous journey to the Brownsville port of entry for his next hearing. He left his home before 3 a.m. so he could arrive at the port of entry on time. At the hearing, Francisco was unable to submit a completed asylum application because he had been unable to find anyone in Matamoros who could translate the application into Spanish or help him fill it out in English. The immigration judge instructed him to bring the completed application to his next hearing in February 2020. Defendants again returned Francisco to Mexico with instructions to appear for his next hearing.
- 233. Francisco eventually found someone in Matamoros who agreed to help him with his asylum application in exchange for payment. Although Francisco did not know if the individual was qualified to provide legal assistance, he felt that he had no other option.
- 234. Francisco had difficulty communicating with the individual about his case. He also noticed that the Spanish translations of his application sometimes omitted required information or included irrelevant information. Francisco is not sure if the individual submitted any supporting evidence with his asylum application.

- 235. Francisco once again made the journey to the Brownsville port of entry for his final hearing in July 2020. He again left his home before 3 a.m. so he could arrive at the port of entry four hours before his hearing. Francisco could not afford to pay the individual who had prepared his asylum application to represent him at his hearing, so he had to represent himself.
- 236. After Francisco testified about his experiences in El Salvador and Mexico, the immigration judge denied his asylum application. She ordered his return to Matamoros and told him he could appeal the decision.
- 237. Following his return to Matamoros, Francisco asked the same individual who had assisted with his asylum application to file an appeal. Although the individual claimed to have submitted the necessary documents, Francisco later learned that his appeal had been rejected because there was no proof of service on the government. Francisco has had no further contact with the individual, who never told him that his appeal had been rejected and did not file a corrected appeal. The individual stopped returning Francisco's calls.
- 238. Francisco has continued to search for an attorney to assist with his case. He does not know how to seek reopening of his case or what evidence he would need to do so.
- 239. If allowed to return to the United States, Francisco would live with his mother in Florida.

10. Plaintiffs Reina Doe and Carlos Doe

- 240. On or around October 8, 2019, Plaintiff Reina Doe and her husband, Plaintiff Carlos Doe, their two children, and Carlos's son crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.
- 241. Defendants detained Reina, Carlos, and their family for approximately four days. Defendants separated Reina and her daughters from Carlos and his son. Defendants served Reina with a Notice to Appear and told her that she would be returned to Mexico to await her hearing. They also gave Reina other paperwork in

- 242. Defendants left Reina, Carlos, and their family in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. When Reina and Carlos asked Mexican immigration officials for help, the officials initially told them to go back to their country. The officials then pointed to trucks parked by the building, which they said belonged to a cartel waiting to take them away. With help from a local pastor, Reina, Carlos, and their family made it safely to a shelter.
- 243. Carlos has struggled to find work in Mexico, due in large part to discrimination against migrants. He has been unable to find stable work, and instead has had to work odd- and part-time jobs to support his family.
- 244. On November 14, 2019, Reina, Carlos, and their family made the dangerous journey to the Laredo port of entry. They appeared in immigration court without legal representation. The immigration judge gave Reina and Carlos a list of legal service providers and advised them to find an attorney to represent them. Reina and Carlos informed the immigration judge that they had completed their asylum applications in Spanish, but the immigration judge told them it had to be in English. At the hearing, Reina and Carlos expressed fear of being returned to Mexico. After conducting a non-refoulement interview, Defendants returned Reina, Carlos, and their family to Mexico.
- 245. Upon their return, Reina, Carlos, and their family were caught in a gun fight between two cartels in Nuevo Laredo. Carlos's son was so traumatized by the violence he had witnessed that he ran away and entered the United States without his

13 14

12

15 16

17 18

19 20

22

21

23 24 25

26 27

28

that he had been kidnapped.

246. Reina diligently attempted to find an attorney to represent her, Carlos, and their family in their removal proceedings. She made numerous attempts to call each of the attorneys on the list she was given, but no one answered her calls. She then family. For several weeks, Reina and Carlos did not know where he was and feared tried to look online for attorneys, but without success.

247. In or around December 2019, Reina, Carlos, and their family survived an attempted kidnapping by individuals who they believe to be cartel members. After the cartel members assaulted Carlos, Reina, and their daughter, Reina screamed for help, and Mexican municipal police officers arrived and promised to take Reina, Carlos, and their family to a "safe place." Instead, the police put them in the back of a van, transported them to the U.S.-Mexico border, and warned them to keep silent about the incident before abandoning them.

248. On January 16, 2020, Reina, Carlos, and their family made the dangerous journey to the Laredo port of entry for their second hearing. At the hearing, Reina and Carlos submitted their asylum applications, along with supporting evidence, which they had translated into English using Reina's phone. Reina and Carlos again expressed fear of returning to Mexico and were given a second non-refoulement interview. However, Defendants again returned Reina, Carlos, and their family to Mexico.

249. On March 17, 2020, Reina, Carlos, and their family made the dangerous journey to the Laredo port of entry for their third hearing. Once again, Reina and Carlos did not have legal representation. The immigration judge denied their cases and gave them paperwork in English that they did not understand. Defendants then gave Reina and Carlos hearing notices for May 2020 and returned them to Mexico.

250. Reina and Carlos did not submit notices of appeal to the BIA because they did not know how to do so. As a result, their removal orders became final. Reina and Carlos attempted to present themselves at the Laredo port of entry in May 2020, but

6 7

5

8 9

11 12

10

14

13

16

15

17 18

19

20 21

22 23

24

26

25

27 28 were prohibited from entering due to the COVID-19 pandemic, and given another appointment for June 2020. When they went to the Laredo port of entry in June 2020, they were again told they could not enter due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

- 251. In early 2021, Reina made contact with attorneys at a legal services organization who agreed to review Carlos and her cases and explained that they would have to seek reopening in order to pursue their asylum claims. Communication with the attorneys has been challenging because Reina does not always have access to a working phone or stable internet. Due to their limited resources, the family shares one phone, and Reina sometimes must wait days to be able to afford more minutes.
- 252. Reina and her family have faced violence or threats of imminent violence throughout their time in Mexico. In addition to surviving an attempted kidnapping by cartel members, they have been threatened and extorted by people claiming to be able to help them obtain Mexican residence permits. On another occasion, Reina, Carlos, and their children were on the way to a grocery store when they were stopped by Mexican municipal police. Upon learning that Reina, Carlos, and their children were migrants, the police robbed them, leaving Reina and Carlos with no money to feed their family that week.
- 253. Even though Reina, Carlos, and their family are at risk of serious harm or death in Mexico, they have stayed there to ensure that they do not lose the chance to pursue their asylum cases.
- 254. If permitted to return to the United States, Reina, Carlos, and their family would live with a friend in Alabama.

11. Plaintiff Dania Doe

- 255. On or around September 10, 2019, Plaintiff Dania Doe and her daughter crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to seek asylum.
- 256. Defendants detained Dania and her daughter for approximately four days. Before returning them to Mexico pursuant to the Protocols, Defendants served Dania with a Notice to Appear and instructed her to return to the Brownsville port of entry for her first immigration hearing on October 23, 2019. Defendants did not provide them with any resources or support for survival, safety, or general well-being.

257. Following their return to Mexico, Dania and her daughter were homeless for over a year. For the first several nights, they slept on the street without any blankets, food, water, money, and no extra clothing.

258. After an aid organization gave them a tent, Dania and her daughter began living at the migrant camp in Matamoros, where they remained until around December 2020. At the camp, Dania and her daughter had no access to running water or electricity, no reliable place to bathe or use the restroom, and no security. Dania lived in fear that anyone could enter their tent at any time. She earned some money by selling food in the camp.

259. On October 23, 2019, Dania and her daughter presented themselves at the Brownsville port of entry. They appeared in immigration court without legal representation and received a list of legal service providers. When an official informed Dania that her hearing would be postponed, she begged not to return to Mexico. Dania was then given a non-refoulement interview, where she explained that several days before the hearing, she and several other women in the migrant camp had been approached by a man covered in blood, and they feared retribution from the cartels for being witnesses. Nonetheless, Defendants returned Dania and her daughter to Mexico with instructions to appear for her rescheduled hearing on January 8, 2020.

260. Dania made many calls to the attorneys on the list. The few who responded told her that they did not serve clients in Matamoros. Dania ultimately received assistance in filling out her asylum application from a pro se legal clinic. Although Dania attempted to obtain documents from El Salvador, the process was very slow and expensive.

261. Shortly after her first court appearance, in late October 2019, Dania and her daughter were walking with another woman and her child when two men kidnapped them and took them to a house. After separating Dania and her friend from their children, the men asked the women what they knew about the bloody man they had seen several days earlier. The men beat Dania and threatened to kill her daughter if she did not tell the truth. They were held for approximately fifteen days, during which Dania was brutally raped every single night. Dania, her daughter, and the other woman and child eventually managed to escape with the assistance of another woman in the house.

262. On January 8, 2020, Dania and her daughter presented themselves at the Brownsville port of entry for their rescheduled first hearing. When they arrived at the court, she submitted her completed asylum application. Prior to the hearing, Dania asked if a doctor could examine her three-year-old daughter, who was very sick at the time. After the doctor realized that the child had an extremely high fever, Dania and her daughter were transported by ambulance to a nearby hospital. Dania's daughter was diagnosed with the flu and treated for several hours before being discharged at approximately 11:00 p.m. that night. Officials transported Dania and her daughter back to the court, where they informed her that her hearing had been rescheduled, but that they would have to spend the night there. They were taken to a cold room with no beds or blankets.

263. The next day, Dania again expressed her fear of returning to Mexico. She was given another non-refoulement interview, where she related the details of her kidnapping. However, Defendants again returned Dania and her daughter to Mexico, with instructions to appear on March 6, 2020.

264. Dania and her daughter presented themselves at the Brownsville port of entry on March 6, 2020, for their rescheduled hearing. After denying Dania's application, the immigration judge asked if she wanted to appeal, and she said yes. Dania was then informed that she would be returned to Mexico again and given a new hearing date of April 6, 2020, which was her deadline to appeal. Following a third non-refoulement interview, Dania and her daughter were returned to Mexico.

6

12 13

11

14 15

16 17

18 19

20 21

22

23 24

25

26

27

28

265. Dania has continued to search for an attorney to assist with her case but has been unable to find one. She did not file a timely notice of appeal to the BIA because she did not know how to do so. As a result, her removal order became final. Dania does not know how to seek reopening of her case or what evidence she would need to do so.

266. On or around December 2020, Dania's daughter became sick again. To avoid the freezing cold conditions in the migrant camp, Dania began renting a small room in Matamoros with another mother and child. She is currently working as a housekeeper. Due to the dangerous conditions in Matamoros, Dania leaves her room only to go to work and to buy food.

267. Even though Dania is at risk of serious harm or death in Mexico, she and her daughter have stayed there to ensure that they do not lose the chance to pursue their asylum case.

268. If permitted to return to the United States, Dania would live with her family in Texas.

Defendants' Policies Harm Organizational Plaintiffs D.

269. Plaintiffs ImmDef and Jewish Family Service are nonprofit organizations that were established to provide legal and other services to detained and non-detained immigrants in California. Before the Protocols were implemented, Organizational Plaintiffs focused on representing and advising detained individuals in custody proceedings; representing, advising and otherwise supporting detained and nondetained individuals seeking asylum and other relief; explaining the legal process to individuals in removal proceedings; conducting factual investigations; researching and articulating potential forms of relief; preparing clients and witnesses to testify; and filling out English-language court forms for non-English-speaking clients in a clear and legible manner.

270. As discussed more fully below, the manner in which Defendants implemented the Protocols and their continuing deprivation of legal representation to individuals subjected to MPP who remain outside the United States frustrate both Organizational Plaintiffs' missions and require them to expend resources they otherwise would invest in other programs.

1. ImmDef

- 271. Plaintiff ImmDef is a nonprofit organization committed to creating a public defender system for immigrants facing deportation.
- 272. Prior to the start of MPP, ImmDef provided limited or full-scope representation in immigration court proceedings and other services to unaccompanied minor children, indigent detained adults, individuals deemed mentally incompetent to represent themselves, and families separated at the border. ImmDef's primary focus was on detained and non-detained individuals in immigration court proceedings in the Greater Los Angeles and Orange County areas (including the Inland Empire), but not generally focused on the San Diego border area.
- 273. In response to Defendants' implementation of the Protocols in January 2019, ImmDef established its Cross Border Initiative ("CBI"), which focuses on providing direct representation, pro se assistance, and advocacy to individuals subjected to MPP. ImmDef has represented individuals and families subjected to MPP in applications for immigration relief and bond requests before the San Diego immigration court, as well as BIA appeals, non-refoulement interviews, parole requests, and motions to reopen before the immigration court. ImmDef also has provided Know Your Rights presentations, conducted asylum clinics, and undertaken advocacy to assist MPP clients whom they do not have capacity to represent. As of December 2021, ImmDef had provided legal assistance to 98 individuals in MPP.
- 274. To represent individuals subjected to the Protocols, ImmDef was required to undertake two new ventures: first, to begin representing individuals in the San Diego immigration court and, second, to engage in cross-border travel and communication. Both required new infrastructure, staff, materials, and funding.

7 8

9 10

12 13

11

14 15

16

17 18

19 20

22

24

25

27

28

21 23

26

work. This decision was driven by the urgent needs of MPP families and the relative lack of resources from partner organizations to assist them. As a result, since MPP started, ImmDef has taken on far fewer cases of families at risk of separation in the Los Angeles area, despite the continued need. 276. When it became clear that ImmDef staff based in Los Angeles could not

275. ImmDef diverted substantial resources from planned projects in Los Angeles, including its Family Unity Project, to support the expansion of MPP-related travel regularly between Los Angeles and Tijuana, ImmDef diverted funding and fundraising resources to establish an office and the necessary infrastructural support in San Diego.

277. By September 2019, ImmDef's Legal Services Director had shifted her focus from representing detained adults in the Greater Los Angeles Area to overseeing the new San Diego office, and ImmDef had dedicated resources to hiring new staff for that office to assist people subjected to the Protocols. Since January 2019, ImmDef has spent at least $400,000 on costs associated with representation of MPP clients.

278. The added challenges of representing individuals stranded in Mexico, including the time and expense involved in cross-border travel, safety risks, communication barriers, and the far-reaching needs of most MPP clients, has increased the amount of staff time required for each case and decreased the total number of cases each ImmDef attorney representing clients in Mexico can effectively handle. Given the precarious circumstances under which most individuals subjected to MPP live, ImmDef has worked to help them address both their legal and non-legal needs, including housing, food, medical care, and safety. These efforts are essential because individuals subjected to MPP could not otherwise fully engage in discussions about their cases. In this way, representing individuals subjected to MPP is different and much more time- and resource-intensive than providing representation in removal proceedings to detained and non-detained individuals inside the United States, where their lives are not constantly at risk.

279. Despite Defendants' stated policy that individuals in MPP should have had an hour to speak to their attorneys before a hearing in immigration court, ImmDef staff were often not allowed to enter the courtroom until a few minutes before the start of court hearings. This lack of access made it extremely difficult and sometimes impossible to review sensitive documents, obtain client signatures, or answer last-minute questions in a way that protected attorney-client confidentiality. ImmDef attorneys were similarly unable to consult privately in court with clients after their MPP hearings.

280. No confidential space was available for client consultation prior to hearings. DHS officers often stood nearby, refusing to move out of hearing distance and preventing confidential communications. Sometimes, DHS officers or agents ended attorney-client conversations prematurely, interfered with those conversations, or prevented lawyers from giving legal documents to their clients. These practices impeded communication, limited what lawyers and clients could and would say to each other, and obstructed ImmDef's representation efforts.

281. Defendants also actively impeded ImmDef's efforts to provide legal information to unrepresented individuals subjected to MPP. Although unrepresented individuals sometimes approached ImmDef attorneys in court to seek legal advice or representation, DHS officers prohibited communications with those individuals. This impeded ImmDef's ability not only to fulfill its mission, but also to identify prospective clients.

282. Once the COVID-19 pandemic began, in-person meetings and Know Your Rights presentations for MPP clients became difficult due to travel restrictions. Unlike cases of detained and non-detained clients in the United States, ImmDef staff have struggled to set up confidential phone appointments with MPP clients. Even if MPP clients outside the United States can afford cell phone service or internet access, they often lack access to a confidential space for sensitive communications. Moreover, connections are often weak or unreliable, and phone communication is generally less effective than in-person communication for purposes of building trust with clients. ImmDef continues to conduct virtual Know Your Rights presentations for persons in the Tijuana border region, including those subjected to MPP; and as of September 28, 2021, ImmDef resumed in-person presentations.

283. Despite the temporary termination of MPP and in light of its reinstatement, ImmDef continues to divert organizational and staff resources to support individuals outside the United States who were or will be subjected to the Protocols.

284. ImmDef's ability to provide representation and other support services to individuals stranded outside the United States remains constrained by security and health concerns that restrict staff members' ability to travel to Mexicali, communication barriers, and precarious living situations of those stranded outside the United States.

285. During the MPP wind-down, ImmDef staff spent countless hours responding to thousands of telephonic inquiries from individuals denied processing at U.S. ports of entry, including some persons subjected to MPP who had questions about their eligibility for processing. Responding to these calls diverted ImmDef's resources away from its mission of providing universal representation, as staff had to spend a significant part of their workday answering calls rather than providing the direct representation the organization is funded to do.

286. In recent months, ImmDef has periodically received inquiries from people who had relocated away from dangerous border towns after having their MPP cases terminated or receiving in absentia orders of removal. ImmDef does not have the financial or staff resources to reach the significant number of people in this situation.

287. Since January 2021, ImmDef's role in the California Welcoming Task Force also continues to divert organizational resources. ImmDef staff attend biweekly and monthly CAWTF meetings. ImmDef staff also co-facilitate the CAWTF's Legal Subgroup. As part of the Legal Subgroup, ImmDef staff spend several hours per week engaging on issues pertaining to MPP, including responding to inquiries from attorneys and organizers regarding various border-related issues and fielding inquiries from asylum seekers subjected to MPP, which would otherwise have been dedicated to other work.

2. Jewish Family Service

288. Plaintiff Jewish Family Service is a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing holistic, culturally competent, trauma-informed, quality legal and other supportive services to immigrants in San Diego and Imperial Counties.

289. Before the implementation of the Protocols, Jewish Family Service provided consultations, limited- and full-scope legal representation for both detained and non-detained individuals in immigration court proceedings in the Otay Mesa and San Diego immigration courts, and limited- and full-scope legal representation before the BIA and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. From January 2018 until MPP started, Jewish Family Service sent a staff member to the Otay Mesa Detention Center for two full days per week to provide free legal consultations, screen potential clients, and meet with existing clients. Jewish Family Service also represented and otherwise assisted non-detained immigrants located in San Diego County in seeking affirmative immigration benefits from USCIS.

290. In response to Defendants' implementation of the Protocols in January 2019, Jewish Family Service shifted its focus to respond to the needs of individuals subjected to MPP who had few other legal representation options available. Before this time, Jewish Family Service had rarely engaged in cross-border legal work.

291. Between January 2019 and August 2021, Jewish Family Service repurposed significant portions of six staff members' time and hired three new full-

292. Given the logistical, technical, and legal complexity of MPP cases, Jewish Family Service was not able to recruit, train, and mentor volunteer attorneys to assist with these cases as they had previously done for non-MPP cases. Although Jewish Family Service had made a concerted effort to expand its volunteer attorney program since 2017, they had to suspend this program due to their lack of capacity to supervise and oversee it following the implementation of MPP.

293. In order to assist individuals subjected to MPP, Jewish Family Service was forced to divert resources away from providing representation and other services to noncitizens in the United States, including individuals detained at the Otay Mesa Detention Center and non-detained individuals in the San Diego area. As a result, from February 1, 2019 to October 20, 2020, Jewish Family Service reduced its representation of non-detained immigrants in the United States by approximately 74 percent and representation of detained immigrants by approximately 27 percent.

294. As of December 2021, Jewish Family Service had provided either limited- or full-scope representation to approximately 130 individuals subjected to MPP and over 600 legal consultations to individuals subjected to MPP. In MPP cases where Jewish Family Service was unable to provide full-scope legal representation, they often represented individuals in parole requests, non-refoulement interviews, applications for affirmative relief, assistance with motions to reopen, or advocacy with DHS.

295. Because many people subjected to the Protocols do not have the ability to contact any of the organizations on EOIR's free legal service provider list, Jewish Family Service expended significant resources to establish cross-border infrastructure to receive calls from individuals subjected to MPP. This infrastructure included a hotline accessible via cell phone and WhatsApp that began operating in February 2019. Before MPP, the staff resources invested in running the MPP hotline would have been dedicated to providing legal services to detained and non-detained individuals in the San Diego area.

296. Jewish Family Service has invested at least 75 hours of staff time in producing English and Spanish "Know Your Rights" videos and other materials about MPP. These materials are publicly available on the internet and provide basic information about the MPP process and the rights of affected individuals. In response to ongoing changes in the MPP process, Jewish Family Service is in the process of updating its online materials and creating additional videos to ensure that individuals subjected to MPP are aware of their rights.

297. In September 2019, Jewish Family Service began an ad hoc program at the San Diego immigration court to provide Know Your Rights presentations and rapid intake screenings for unrepresented individuals on the MPP docket. Until MPP hearings were suspended in March 2020, Jewish Family Service made a concerted effort to conduct these activities inside the courtrooms while MPP-affected individuals and families waited for their hearings to start. These presentations were independent of the attorney-client communications ostensibly permitted during the hour before hearings, were not authorized by Defendants, and were not confidential.

298. In an effort to address these problems, Jewish Family Service tried repeatedly to formalize the Know Your Rights program and arrange a confidential space in the immigration court building to meet with individuals in need of immediate legal assistance. Both EOIR and ICE denied these requests, severely impeding Jewish Family Service's ability to identify and advise potential MPP clients.

299. Jewish Family Service rarely had the opportunity to meet with its clients for a full hour before their immigration court hearings due to a variety of factors, including CBP's slow processing at the port of entry and ICE's failure to transport individuals to the immigration court sufficiently in advance of their hearings. When ICE did permit pre-hearing consultations, they occurred in a crowded, open courtroom with no assurances of confidentiality. Jewish Family Service was similarly prevented from consulting confidentially with MPP clients following their hearings.

300. Jewish Family Service has faced significant challenges in communicating with individuals outside the United States, including bad internet or cell phone connections, callers' limited minutes, lack of access to private spaces where individuals can speak freely, and security concerns. Limitations on internet and cell phone access also complicate the sharing of documents, compromise the quality of documents transmitted, and raise concerns about confidentiality. To facilitate document sharing and minimize the risk of confidentiality breaches, Jewish Family Service has invested significant resources in technology over the course of MPP's implementation, including by providing cell phones to all staff members assisting with cross-border work and purchasing additional software licenses.

301. Before March 16, 2020, Jewish Family Service expended significant resources for its staff to travel to Tijuana to meet with clients subjected to the Protocols. For each MPP case, Jewish Family Service staff members usually made three to five trips to Mexico for legal visits. Staff members sometimes also traveled to Tijuana, sometimes as early as 3 a.m., to accompany their clients to the San Ysidro port of entry on their hearing dates, which increased the length of the workday for staff.

302. Jewish Family Service's staff members did not have consistent access to space in Tijuana where they could meet confidentially with clients. In cases where Jewish Family Service conducted meetings in clients' living spaces, some clients expressed fear that they would be targeted by organized crime if people from the United States were seen entering or leaving. These circumstances hindered Jewish Family Service's ability to provide meaningful legal representation.

303. Jewish Family Service co-leads the California Welcoming Task Force, which was established in January 2021 to assist people eligible for the MPP winddown, with the goal of welcoming new arrivals in a dignified and humane way. Specifically, Jewish Family Service leads the humanitarian work group of the CAWTF, which convenes a binational group of humanitarian service providers to share information, best practices, trends, and ensure that the new arrivals have shelter, food, health care, and can be placed in a safe location while their cases are being processed. They participate in weekly meetings with the legal services, advocacy, communications, and facilitators work groups. As a leader in the CAWTF, Jewish Family Service also attends weekly meetings with welcoming task forces in other border regions as well as joint meetings with DHS and the Department of Justice.

304. From February 19, 2021, when the MPP wind-down started, through August 24, 2021, Jewish Family Service staff regularly traveled to the San Ysidro port of entry to provide legal and humanitarian support to individuals permitted to enter the United States.

305. Since the government halted the wind-down, Jewish Family Service has continued to represent and advise individuals subjected to MPP. They have fielded dozens of MPP-related inquiries, including from individuals who received final orders of removal or had their cases terminated.

306. As one of the few California-based organizations that provides representation and other assistance to individuals subjected to MPP, Jewish Family Service regularly receives case referrals from international organizations such as the UNHCR, the International Organization for Migration, and UNICEF, as well as many shelters in and around Tijuana. Given the increasing number of local referrals from these sources, Jewish Family Service decided in December 2021 to shut down its MPP hotline, which had begun drawing a significant number of calls from individuals outside Jewish Family Service's service area.

307. In June 2021, Jewish Family Service staff resumed travel to Tijuana to assist individuals subjected to MPP. During these trips, Jewish Family Service assisted individuals with in absentia orders who filed joint motions to reopen and were unaware of the steps they needed to take to be processed into the United States during expanded MPP processing. Jewish Family Service staff continues to struggle to find confidential spaces in which to meet with clients subjected to MPP.

308. Jewish Family Service has encountered numerous challenges when assisting individuals with motions to reopen. For example, individuals are required to gather and submit evidence in support of their motion to reopen, which is often difficult for those stranded outside of the United States. In cases where DHS refuses to join a motion to reopen, individuals who have received in absentia orders in MPP proceedings and missed the deadline to file a motion to reopen must make complex tolling arguments to have any chance of having their cases reopened. Jewish Family Service staff members must invest additional time and resources when assisting with complex motions to reopen.

309. Jewish Family Service's ongoing work on behalf of individuals subjected to MPP has diverted substantial resources from their prior work on behalf of clients in the United States. In addition, due to safety concerns in Mexico, Jewish Family Service purchased additional insurance and adopted the practice of assigning two caseworkers to each case. This practice significantly decreased the total number of clients that Jewish Family Service could represent.

310. As a result of Jewish Family Service's diversion of resources to assist individuals subjected to MPP, the organization is behind on its deliverables for grants they have received for removal defense and immigration detention cases in the United States.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS 1 2 311. Individual Plaintiffs bring this action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil 3 Procedure 23(a) and 23(b)(2) on behalf of themselves and all other persons similarly 4 situated. 5 312. Individual Plaintiffs seek to represent a class of individuals who were 6 subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, remain outside the United States, and whose 7 cases are not currently active due to termination or a final removal order in MPP 8 proceedings. Plaintiffs also seek certification of three subclasses of individuals whose 9 cases were terminated, who received in absentia removal orders, and who received 10 final removal orders for reasons other than failure to appear. 11 313. All Individual Plaintiffs seek to represent the proposed "Inactive MPP 12 Class," defined as: 13 All individuals subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, who remain outside the United States and whose cases are not currently active due to 14 termination of proceedings or a final removal order. 15 314. Individual Plaintiffs Lidia Doe, Antonella Doe, and Rodrigo Doe seek to represent the proposed "Terminated Case Subclass," defined as: 16 17 All individuals subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, who remain outside the United States and whose MPP proceedings were terminated 18 and remain inactive. 19 315. Individual Plaintiffs Chepo Doe, Yesenia Doe, and Sofia Doe seek to 20 represent the proposed "In Absentia Subclass," defined as: 21 All individuals subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, who remain outside the United States, received an in absentia order of removal in MPP proceedings, and whose cases have not been reopened and are not 22 currently pending review before a federal circuit court of appeals. 23 24 316. Individual Plaintiffs Gabriela Doe, Ariana Doe, Francisco Doe, Reina 25 Doe, Carlos Doe, and Dania Doe seek to represent the proposed "Final Order 26 Subclass," defined as: All individuals subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, who remain outside the United States, received a final order of removal for reasons 27 other than failure to appear for an immigration court hearing, and whose cases have not been reopened and are not currently pending review before a federal circuit court of appeals.

28

317. The Inactive MPP Class, Terminated Case Subclass, In Absentia Subclass, and Final Order Subclass are each so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Through October 2021, at least 27,653 individuals subjected to MPP had received in absentia removal orders, <sup>70</sup> and at least an additional 4,581 individuals subjected to MPP had received removal orders for reasons other than failure to appear. <sup>71</sup> In addition, the cases of at least 10,510 individuals subjected to MPP had been terminated. <sup>72</sup> Upon information and belief, the vast majority of these individuals are unable to pursue their claims for relief because their cases have not been reopened or restarted. Additionally, upon information and belief, very few such individuals have been able to pursue reopening of their immigration proceedings, appeal to the BIA, or seek judicial review before a federal circuit court of appeals. Individual Plaintiffs' precarious living conditions, geographical dispersion, and lack of access to legal representation or resources make joinder impracticable.

318. There are questions of law and fact that are common to all members of the Inactive MPP Class, including the Terminated Case Subclass, the In Absentia Subclass, and the Final Order Subclass, and that predominate over any question affecting only Individual Plaintiffs. Class members allege common harms: violation of the right to apply for asylum by virtue of being stranded outside the United States; obstruction of their access to legal representation; violation of their right to a full and fair hearing; and obstruction of their right to hire and consult an attorney and petition the courts.

&lt;sup>70</sup> TRAC Immigration, Details on MPP, supra n.1 (filters set to "Hearing Location: All," "Hearing Attendance: Not Present at Last Hearing (Absentia Decision)" and "Outcome: Removal Order").

&lt;sup>71</sup> Id. (filters set to "Hearing Location: All," "Hearing Attendance: Always Present at Hearings" and "Outcome: Removal Order").

&lt;sup>72</sup> Id. (filters set to "Hearing Location: All," "Outcome: Terminate Proceedings").

319. Class members' claims are based on a common core of facts. All proposed class members were subjected to MPP before June 1, 2021; have cases that are not currently active due to termination or a final removal order in MPP proceedings and that have not been restarted or reopened; and remain outside the United States. All proposed class members' ability to present their claims for relief and access legal representation have been impeded by the harms they have been forced to endure because of MPP.

320. All proposed Inactive MPP Class and Final Order Subclass members raise the same legal claims under the INA, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1158(a)(1), 1158(d)(4), 1229a(b)(4), 1362; the APA, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2); the Fifth Amendment Due Process Clause; and the First Amendment. All proposed Terminated Case Subclass and In Absentia Subclass members raise these same legal claims, as well as additional shared legal claims under the APA, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), for Defendants' unlawful cessation of the wind-down. Class members' shared common facts will ensure that judicial findings regarding the legality of the challenged practices will be the same for all class members.

321. Should Plaintiffs prevail, all class members will benefit: each of them will be entitled to return to the United States, with appropriate precautionary public health measures, in order to pursue their asylum proceedings from inside the country.

322. Individual Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the Inactive MPP Class, including the Terminated Case Subclass, In Absentia Subclass, and the Final Order Subclass. Individual Plaintiffs and class members raise common legal claims and are united in their interest and injury. All Individual Plaintiffs, like all class members, are asylum seekers whom Defendants unlawfully deprived of the right to apply for asylum by trapping them in Mexico under dangerous conditions in a manner that obstructed their access to legal assistance, reasonable safety, and basic human needs; their right to access legal representation; their right to a full and fair asylum hearing; and their right to hire and consult an attorney and petition the courts.

Individual Plaintiffs and class members are thus victims of the same unlawful course of conduct.

323. Individual Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Inactive MPP Class. Individual Plaintiffs Lidia Doe, Antonella Doe, and Rodrigo Doe will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the Terminated Case Subclass; Individual Plaintiffs Chepo Doe, Yesenia Doe, and Sofia Doe will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the In Absentia Subclass; and Individual Plaintiffs Gabriela Doe, Ariana Doe, Francisco Doe, Reina Doe, Carlos Doe, and Dania Doe will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the Final Order Subclass. Individual Plaintiffs seek relief on behalf of the class as a whole and have no interest antagonistic to other members of the class. Individual Plaintiffs' mutual goal is to declare Defendants' challenged policies unlawful and to obtain declaratory and injunctive relief that would cure this illegality. Individual Plaintiffs seek a remedy for the same injuries as class members, and all share an interest in having a meaningful right to apply for asylum, to access legal representation, to have a full and fair asylum hearing, and to hire and consult an attorney and petition the courts. Thus, the interests of Individual Plaintiffs and class members are aligned.

324. Plaintiffs are represented by attorneys from the Southern Poverty Law Center, the National Immigration Project of the National Lawyers Guild, Innovation Law Lab, and Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer LLP. Counsel have demonstrated a commitment to protecting the rights and interests of noncitizens and, together, have considerable experience in handling complex and class action litigation in the immigration field. Counsel have represented numerous classes of noncitizens and other victims of systemic government misconduct in actions in which they successfully obtained class relief.

325. The members of the proposed class and each proposed subclass are readily ascertainable through Defendants' records.

326. Defendants have acted, have threatened to act, and will act on grounds generally applicable to the Inactive MPP Class and each Subclass, thereby making final injunctive and declaratory relief appropriate to the Inactive MPP Class, including the Terminated Subclass, the In Absentia Subclass, and the Final Order Subclass, as a whole.

327. Through the Protocols, Defendants have denied Individual Plaintiffs and class members a meaningful right to apply for asylum, the right to access legal representation, and the right to hire and consult an attorney and petition the courts. Defendants' actions violate Individual Plaintiffs' and class members' statutory and constitutional rights.

328. Declaratory and injunctive relief are appropriate remedies. In the absence of a class action, there is substantial risk that individual actions would be brought in different venues, creating a risk of inconsistent adjudications to address Defendants' common conduct.

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE ACT, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2) VIOLATION OF THE RIGHT TO APPLY FOR ASYLUM, 8 U.S.C. § 1158(a)(1) (ALL PLAINTIFFS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

- 329. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.
- 330. The APA provides that courts "shall . . . hold unlawful and set aside agency action" that is "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, . . . otherwise not in accordance with law: . . . [or] in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations, or short of statutory right." 5 U.S.C. §§ 706(2)(A) & (C).
- 331. An agency action is arbitrary and capricious where the agency "relied on factors which Congress has not intended it to consider" or "entirely failed to consider an important aspect of the problem." Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass'n v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 463 U.S. 29, 43 (1983).

- 332. The Refugee Act as codified in the INA provides that the United States government must provide a uniform method by which an individual can meaningfully apply for asylum under 8 U.S.C. § 1158(a)(1). This uniform method includes the right to seek reopening of asylum proceedings, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1229a(c)(7), (b)(5)(C), and the right to appeal an unfavorable decision, 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(5).
- 333. Defendants' Migrant Protection Protocols and their implementation subverted and violated the right to apply for asylum by trapping Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals in a foreign country under dangerous conditions in a manner that obstructed access to all components of the U.S. asylum system. The ongoing effects of the Protocols' implementation continue to violate this right, including by impeding individuals' ability to restart or reopen their immigration cases or appeal an unfavorable decision.
- 334. The Protocols and their implementation have also subverted and violated the right to apply for asylum by irrationally treating asylum seekers at the southern border in a discriminatory and non-uniform way.
- 335. The Protocols were arbitrary and capricious or an abuse of discretion because, in adopting the Protocols in January 2019, Defendants failed to consider how leaving individuals stranded outside the United States in life-threatening conditions and without access to legal representation would obstruct these individuals' access to the U.S. asylum system, including, where relevant, by impeding their ability to restart or reopen their asylum proceedings or appeal an unfavorable decision. Defendants also failed to consider the obstacles that Organizational Plaintiffs would face in safely meeting and effectively communicating with clients and potential clients who were subjected to MPP, including individuals who were seeking to restart or reopen proceedings from outside the United States.

- 336. The Protocols and their implementation have kept Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals stranded outside the United States and continue to obstruct their access to the U.S. asylum system, including their right to appeal or seek reopening of their asylum proceedings.
- 337. By stranding Organizational Plaintiffs' clients and potential clients outside the United States in a manner that obstructs access to all components of the U.S. asylum system, the Protocols also interfere with Organizational Plaintiffs' ability to deliver meaningful legal assistance to individuals seeking to apply for asylum, including, where relevant, individuals seeking to restart or reopen their asylum proceedings. The impact of Defendants' implementation of the Protocols continues to frustrate Organizational Plaintiffs' core missions, impair their efforts, and force them to divert resources away from existing programs.
- 338. The Protocols and their implementation have thereby violated the right to seek asylum under the INA and are arbitrary and capricious, an abuse of discretion, not in accordance with law, or in excess of statutory authority under 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A).
- 339. The Protocols are a final agency action that is reviewable under 5 U.S.C. §§ 702 and 706.
- 340. Defendants' violation of the APA causes ongoing harm to Individual Plaintiffs, similarly situated individuals, and Organizational Plaintiffs.
- 341. Plaintiffs do not have an adequate alternative remedy at law and therefore seek immediate review under the APA and injunctive relief.

SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE ACT, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2) VIOLATION OF THE RIGHT TO ACCESS TO COUNSEL (ALL PLAINTIFFS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

342. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

- 343. The APA provides that courts "shall . . . hold unlawful and set aside agency action" that is "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, . . . otherwise not in accordance with law: . . . [or] in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations, or short of statutory right." 5 U.S.C. §§ 706(2)(A) & (C).
- 344. An agency action is arbitrary and capricious where the agency "relied on factors which Congress has not intended it to consider" or "entirely failed to consider an important aspect of the problem." Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass 'n, 463 U.S. at 43.
- 345. The INA provides noncitizens who are seeking asylum with a right to access to counsel. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1158(d)(4), 1229a(b)(4)(A), 1362.
- 346. Defendants' Migrant Protection Protocols and their implementation have subverted and violated the right to access to counsel by trapping individuals in conditions that obstruct their access to legal representation and impose systemic obstacles to the ability of Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals to access legal representation, the cumulative effect of which is tantamount to a denial of counsel. The ongoing effects of the Protocols' implementation continue to violate this right, including by impeding individuals' ability to access counsel when seeking to restart or reopen their immigration cases or appeal an unfavorable decision.
- 347. The Protocols were also arbitrary and capricious or an abuse of discretion because, in adopting the Protocols, Defendants failed to consider the obstacles that individuals subjected to MPP would face in accessing and communicating with legal representatives in the United States and in accessing food, shelter, health care, and other basic needs, as well as the effect those obstacles would have in exacerbating such individuals' inability to meaningfully access legal representation. Defendants also failed to consider the obstacles that Organizational Plaintiffs would face in safely meeting and effectively communicating with clients and potential clients who were subjected to MPP, including individuals who were seeking to restart or reopen their proceedings from outside the United States.

- 348. The Protocols and their implementation have kept Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals stranded outside the United States and continue to obstruct their access to legal representation, including their right to appeal or seek reopening of their asylum proceedings.
- 349. By stranding Organizational Plaintiffs' clients and potential clients outside the United States in a manner that obstructs their access to counsel, the Protocols have also interfered with Organizational Plaintiffs' ability to deliver meaningful legal assistance to individuals seeking to apply for asylum, including, where relevant, individuals seeking to restart or reopen their asylum proceedings. The impact of Defendants' implementation of the Protocols continues to frustrate Organizational Plaintiffs' core missions, impair their efforts, and force them to divert resources away from existing programs.
- 350. The Protocols and their implementation have thereby violated the right to access to counsel under the INA and are arbitrary and capricious, an abuse of discretion, not in accordance with law, or in excess of statutory authority under 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A).
- 351. The Protocols are a final agency action that is reviewable under 5 U.S.C. §§ 702 and 706.
- 352. Defendants' violation of the APA causes ongoing harm to Individual Plaintiffs, similarly situated individuals, and Organizational Plaintiffs.
- 353. Plaintiffs do not have an adequate alternative remedy at law and therefore seek immediate review under the APA and injunctive relief.

THIRD CLAIM FOR RELIEF

VIOLATION OF FIFTH AMENDMENT DUE PROCESS CLAUSE RIGHT TO FULL AND FAIR HEARING (ALL INDIVIDUAL PLAINTIFFS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

354. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

355. The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment guarantees noncitizens the right to a full and fair hearing in their removal cases. See, e.g., Colmenar v. INS, 210 F.3d 967, 971 (9th Cir. 2000).

356. The Due Process Clause also guarantees noncitizens the right to effective assistance of counsel in their removal proceedings at no cost to the government. Ray v. Gonzales, 439 F.3d 582, 587 (9th Cir. 2006) (stating that "this Circuit has long recognized that a [noncitizen's] due process right to obtain counsel in immigration matters also includes a right to competent representation . . . due process requires more than the formal availability of counsel") (emphasis in original); Biwot, 403 F.3d at 1098 ("The right to counsel in immigration proceedings is rooted in the Due Process Clause . . . ."); Orantes-Hernandez v. Thornburgh, 919 F.2d 549, 554 (9th Cir. 1990) (stating that noncitizens' "fundamental" right to counsel "must be respected in substance as well as in name") (citation and quotation marks omitted).

357. Defendants' Migrant Protection Protocols and their implementation have imposed systemic obstacles to the Fifth Amendment rights of Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals by obstructing their meaningful access to legal representation.

358. The Protocols and their implementation have also imposed systemic obstacles to the Fifth Amendment rights of Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals by obstructing their ability to collect evidence and to communicate with potential witnesses and experts, as necessary to meaningfully prepare and present their claims for relief.

359. The Protocols and their implementation have left Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals stranded under untenable conditions outside the United States, in circumstances that undermine their ability to restart or reopen their cases in order to pursue their claims for relief. The implementation of the Protocols thus continues to undermine these individuals' Fifth Amendment rights to counsel and to

6

10

11 12

13 14

15 16

17 18

19

20 21

22

23 24

25

26

27

28

present the evidence necessary to restart or reopen their immigration proceedings and thereby access the U.S. asylum system.

360. Defendants' violations of the Due Process Clause cause ongoing harm to Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals.

FOURTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE ACT, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2) UNLAWFUL CESSATION OF THE MPP WIND-DOWN (INDIVIDUAL PLAINTIFFS LIDIA DOE, ANTONELLA DOE, RODRIGO

ORGANIZATIONAL PLAINTIFFS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

DOE, CHEPO DOE, YESENIA DOE, SOFIA DOE, AND

- 361. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.
- 362. The APA provides that courts "shall . . . hold unlawful and set aside agency action" that is "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, . . . otherwise not in accordance with law: . . . [or] in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations, or short of statutory right." 5 U.S.C. §§ 706(2)(A) & (C).
- 363. An agency action is arbitrary and capricious where the agency "relied on factors which Congress has not intended it to consider" or "entirely failed to consider an important aspect of the problem." Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass'n, 463 U.S. at 43.
- 364. By halting the MPP wind-down, Defendants stopped processing Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals without adequate explanation. Upon information and belief, Defendants did so in a mistaken belief that the Texas v. Biden injunction required cessation of processing of these individuals. In making that sudden decision, Defendants unlawfully failed to take into account the reliance interests of persons with terminated cases and in absentia removal orders. See DHS v. Regents of the Univ. of Cal., 591 U.S. , 140 S. Ct. 1891, 1913–14 (2020). Defendants also failed to adequately account for the reliance interests of Organizational Plaintiffs, who had diverted substantial resources and specifically restructured their programming in reliance on the wind-down process.

365. Defendants' decision to halt the MPP wind-down is not in accordance with law or is in excess of statutory authority because it undermines the right of Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals to seek asylum and to access counsel. 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A); see E. Bay Sanctuary Covenant v. Trump, 950 F.3d 1242, 1271 (9th Cir. 2020), amended by 993 F.3d 640 (9th Cir. 2021).

366. Defendants' decision to halt the MPP wind-down was also arbitrary and capricious. Had DHS processed the cases of Individual Plaintiffs with terminated cases and facilitated joint motions to reopen of Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals with in absentia removal orders before halting the MPP wind-down in August 2021, these Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals would have been eligible to return to the United States to pursue their claims for relief. Instead, by ending the wind-down, DHS has left them stranded outside the country, where they live in untenable conditions while their cases remain in limbo.

367. Defendants' decision to halt the MPP wind-down causes ongoing harm to Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals with terminated cases and in absentia removal orders. In making that sudden decision, Defendants unlawfully failed to take into account the reliance interests of such individuals.

368. Defendants' decision to halt the MPP wind-down also causes ongoing harm to Organizational Plaintiffs by interfering with their ability to deliver meaningful legal assistance to individuals seeking to apply for asylum, including individuals seeking to restart or reopen their cases, as provided by the INA. The impact of Defendants' cessation of the wind-down continues to frustrate Organizational Plaintiffs' core missions and force them to divert resources away from existing programs.

369. Defendants' decision to halt the MPP wind-down has thereby violated the right to seek asylum and the right to access counsel under the INA and is arbitrary and capricious, not in accordance with law, or in excess of statutory authority under 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A).

- 370. Defendants' decision to halt the MPP wind-down is a final agency action that is reviewable under 5 U.S.C. §§ 702 and 706.
- 371. Defendants' violation of the APA causes ongoing harm to Individual Plaintiffs, similarly situated individuals, and Organizational Plaintiffs.
- 372. Plaintiffs do not have an adequate alternative remedy at law and therefore seek immediate review under the APA and injunctive relief.

FIFTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF VIOLATION OF THE FIRST AMENDMENT

(ALL INDIVIDUAL PLAINTIFFS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

- 373. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.
- 374. Defendants' Migrant Protection Protocols and their implementation have interfered with and obstructed the First Amendment rights of Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals to hire and consult an attorney and petition the courts.
- 375. "[T]he 'right to hire and consult an attorney is protected by the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech, association and petition." Mothershed v. Justices of Supreme Court, 410 F.3d 602, 611 (9th Cir. 2005), as amended on denial of reh'g (9th Cir. July 21, 2005) (quoting Denius v. Dunlap, 209 F.3d 944, 953 (7th Cir. 2000)). The First Amendment protects the efforts of individuals to seek the assistance of attorneys and petition the courts, including with respect to immigration proceedings.
- 376. The Protocols and their implementation have forced individuals subjected to them, including Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals, to return to Mexico, and prevented them from returning to the United States except under limited circumstances. As implemented, the Protocols left Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals with, at most, a single hour before court appearances, which often was not available in practice and, in any case, was insufficient to obtain comprehensive advice regarding the legal issues surrounding their asylum claims. Pro se Individual Plaintiffs Lidia Doe, Antonella Doe, Rodrigo Doe, Yesenia Doe, Sofia Doe, Gabriela Doe, Ariana Doe, Francisco Doe, Reina Doe and Carlos Doe, <sup>73</sup> and Dania Doe were denied even that single hour to seek legal advice. The Protocols and their implementation thus restricted communication with legal service providers while Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals were in the United States, with the result that nearly all meaningful legal communication had to occur while they were in Mexico.

Case 2:20-cv-09893-JGB-SHK Document 175 Filed 12/22/21 Page 94 of 100 Page ID #:2335

377. The Protocols and their implementation continue to cause harm to Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals by obstructing their rights to hire and consult with an attorney. Forced to pursue their cases from outside the United States, Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals have been and continue to be unable to communicate effectively with attorneys in the United States. Due to health, safety, and resource constraints, U.S.-based attorneys cannot meet in person with Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals on a regular basis. Communication by telephone or internet requires substantial time and funds and is unreliable at best.

378. The Protocols and their implementation have required nearly all legal communication to occur while Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals are outside the United States, where meaningful legal communication is functionally impossible or possible only at great expense or substantial risk. Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals lack viable meaningful alternative channels, let alone ample alternative channels, for seeking the assistance of counsel and petitioning the courts.

&lt;sup>73</sup> Although Reina and Carlos Doe ultimately made contact with a legal services organization, see supra  $\P$  251, they were unrepresented throughout their immigration court proceedings.

13

12

14 15

16 17

18

19 20

22

21

23 24

25

26

27

28

379. Accordingly, the Protocols and their implementation unreasonably restrict the time, place, and manner in which Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals may exercise their First Amendment rights to hire and consult an attorney and petition the courts. Defendants' policy therefore places unreasonable restrictions on Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals' constitutionally protected right to seek the assistance of attorneys and petition the courts and is unconstitutional.

380. Individual Plaintiffs and similarly situated individuals have suffered and continue to suffer ongoing injury as a result of Defendants' violation of their constitutional right to hire and consult an attorney and petition the courts and are thus entitled to declaratory and injunctive relief.

SIXTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF VIOLATION OF FIRST AMENDMENT RIGHTS TO ADVISE POTENTIAL AND EXISTING CLIENTS

(ORGANIZATIONAL PLAINTIFFS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

- 381. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.
- 382. Defendants' Migrant Protection Protocols and their implementation interfere with and obstruct Organizational Plaintiffs' First Amendment rights to advise potential and existing clients.
- 383. The First Amendment protects legal service providers from government interference when they are "advocating lawful means of vindicating legal rights." NAACP v. Button, 371 U.S. 415, 437 (1963). Pro bono legal assistance to immigrants in removal proceedings falls within this zone of protection. Nw. Immigrant Rights Project v. Sessions, No. C17-716 RAJ, 2017 WL 3189032 at *3 (W.D. Wash. July 27, 2017).

- 384. The protection afforded by the First Amendment extends to advising potential clients of their rights. See, e.g., In re Primus, 436 U.S. 412, 431–32 (1978); Nw. Immigrant Rights Project, 2017 WL 3189032, at *2–3.
- 385. The protection afforded by the First Amendment also includes providing legal assistance to existing clients. See, e.g., Legal Servs. Corp. v. Velazquez, 531 U.S. 533 (2001); In re Primus, 436 U.S. 412; Button, 371 U.S. 415; Torres v. DHS, 411 F. Supp. 3d 1036 (C.D. Cal. 2019).
- 386. By advising, assisting, and consulting with potential and existing clients, attorneys disseminate important legal information, and the "creation and dissemination of information are speech within the meaning of the First Amendment." Sorrell v. IMS Health Inc., 564 U.S. 552, 570 (2011).
- 387. The Migrant Protection Protocols trapped all potential and existing clients in Mexico and prevented them from returning to the United States except under limited circumstances. The Protocols and their implementation limited the time available for legal communication in the United States to communication with already-represented individuals; the Protocols and their implementation prohibited legal communication with unrepresented potential clients. For their existing clients, Organizational Plaintiffs were left, at most, with a single hour before court appearances, which often was not available in practice and, in any case, was insufficient to provide comprehensive advice regarding the legal issues surrounding their clients' asylum claims. At the very least, Organizational Plaintiffs lacked viable alternative channels to advise their existing clients. As a result of these restrictions, nearly all meaningful legal communication between Organizational Plaintiffs and their clients had to occur while the clients were in Mexico.
- 388. The Protocols and their implementation also prevented Organizational Plaintiffs from advising potential clients regarding Organizational Plaintiffs' viewpoints regarding the rights of individuals subjected to MPP.

389. The Protocols and their implementation have continued to restrict Organizational Plaintiffs' ability to meaningfully communicate with potential and existing clients while those clients are seeking to pursue their cases from outside the United States. Organizational Plaintiffs remain unable to meaningfully communicate with these individuals or are able to do so only at great expense or substantial risk.

390. The Protocols and their implementation therefore constitute unreasonable restrictions on Organizational Plaintiffs' constitutionally protected rights to solicit and advise potential clients and to provide legal advice to existing clients. Organizational Plaintiffs lack viable alternative channels to exercise their First Amendment rights to solicit and advise potential clients and to provide legal advice to existing clients. Accordingly, Defendants' policies and their implementation violate Organizational Plaintiffs' First Amendment rights to solicit and advise potential clients and to provide legal advice to existing clients and are unconstitutional.

391. Organizational Plaintiffs have suffered and continue to suffer ongoing injury as a result of Defendants' violation of Organizational Plaintiffs' constitutional rights to advise potential and existing clients and are entitled to declaratory and injunctive relief to avoid any further injury.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs request that this Court:

- a) Certify the following classes of noncitizens who were subjected to MPP and remain outside the United States:
  - 1. Inactive MPP Class: All individuals subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, who remain outside the United States and whose cases are not currently active due to termination of proceedings or a final removal order.

- 3. In Absentia Subclass: All individuals subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, who remain outside the United States, received an in absentia order of removal in MPP proceedings, and whose cases have not been reopened and are not currently pending review before a federal circuit court of appeals.
- 4. Final Order Subclass: All individuals subjected to MPP prior to June 1, 2021, who remain outside the United States, received a final order of removal for reasons other than failure to appear for an immigration court hearing, and whose cases have not been reopened and are not currently pending review before a federal circuit court of appeals.
- b) Name all Individual Plaintiffs as representatives of the Inactive MPP Class; Lidia Doe, Antonella Doe, and Rodrigo Doe as representatives of the Terminated Case Subclass; Chepo Doe, Yesenia Doe, and Sofia Doe as representatives of the In Absentia Subclass; and Gabriela Doe, Ariana Doe, Francisco Doe, Reina Doe, Carlos Doe, and Dania Doe as representatives of the Final Order Subclass; and appoint Plaintiffs' counsel as class counsel;
- c) Declare that MPP as implemented violates federal statutes and the United States Constitution;
- d) Order Defendants, their subordinates, agents, employees, and all others acting in concert with them to issue an injunction sufficient to remedy the violations of the rights of both the Individual and Organizational Plaintiffs and class members;
- e) Allow each of the Individual Plaintiffs and class members to return to the United States, with appropriate precautionary public health measures, for a period sufficient to enable them to seek legal representation, and pursue their asylum proceedings from inside the United States;

Pending the release of individuals into the United States, order 1 f) 2 Defendants to provide an adequate facility in the United States for legal visitation 3 with no less than 20 confidential meeting spaces (adequate under all appropriate precautionary public health measures), accessible by legal representatives, 4 interpreters and individuals subjected to MPP for no less than seven days a week, 5 including holidays, for no less than eight hours a day per day on regular business days 6 7 and a minimum of four hours per day on weekends and holidays. Such meeting spaces 8 shall provide access to an international telephone line, third-party interpretation, and 9 videoconferencing; 10 Award Plaintiffs all costs incurred in maintaining this action, including 11 reasonable attorneys' fees under the Equal Access to Justice Act, as amended, 12 5 U.S.C. § 504 and 28 U.S.C. § 2412, and on any other basis justified by law; and h) Grant such further relief as this Court deems just and proper. 13 14 15 Dated: December 22, 2021 ARNOLD & PORTER KAYE SCHOLER LLP 16 By: /s/ Matthew T. Heartney 17 18 JOHN A. FREEDMAN 19 EMILY REEDER-RICCHETTI 20 Attorneys for Plaintiffs 21 22 Dated: December 22, 2021 SOUTHERN POVERTY LAW CENTER 23 By: /s/ Melissa Crow 24 FELIX MONTANEZ 25 STEPHANIE M. ALVAREZ-JONES 26 Attorneys for Plaintiffs 27 28

Case 2:20-cv-09893-JGB-SHK Document 175 Filed 12/22/21 Page 100 of 100 Page ID #:2341

l
1	Dated: December 22, 2021	NATIONAL IMMIGRATION PROJECT OF THE NATIONAL LAWYERS GUILD
2
3		By: /s/ Sirine Shebaya
4		MATTHEW VOGEL AMBER QURESHI
5		Attorneys for Plaintiffs
6
7	Datada Dagambar 22, 2021	INNOVATION LAW LAD
8	Dated: December 22, 2021	INNOVATION LAW LAB
9   10		By: /s/ Stephen W. Manning STEPHEN W. MANNING
11		JORDAN CUNNINGS KELSEY PROVO
12		TESS HELLGREN
13		Attorneys for Plaintiffs
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
		98