Childhood and Migration in Central and North America: Causes, Policies, Practices and Challenges

February 2015
Acknowledgments

This study was made possible by the leadership and generous financial support of the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation. Contributions from the Ford Foundation were also critical to the successful completion of this project.

Lisa Frydman and Karen Musalo, of the Center for Gender and Refugees Studies of University of California Hastings College of the Law (CGRS) thank their colleagues Blaine Bookey, Moira Duvernay, Julia Epstein, Eunice Lee, and Misha Seay for their contributions, including countless hours dedicated towards overall project coordination, editing and proofreading of this book. We also thank CGRS staff Emily Higgs and Sarah Adams for their invaluable support in doing whatever was needed throughout the life of the project. In addition, we are grateful to our many volunteers, interns, and consultants who played a vital role in making this project possible: Hailey McAllister, William Castillo Guardado, Alla Holmes, Stephen Liebb, Felipe Navarro, Kayla Rothman-Zecher, and Martha Ruch. CGRS also thanks research assistants Nikki Marquez and Finella Murphy for their contributions.

Pablo Ceriani Cernadas of the Center for Justice and Human Rights at the National University of Lanús, Argentina (CDHUNLa) thanks Agostina Hernández Bologna, Laura Gottero, Andrea Stilman, and Leticia Virosta for their collaboration in revising and editing this book.

CGRS and CDHUNLa are indebted to Alejandro Morlachetti for his important contributions to the writing and editing of the book.

Making this book available in its entirety in both English and Spanish would not have been possible without the patience and skill of the following translators: J. Alberto Fernández, Madeline Newman Rios, Kathy Ogle, Charlie Roberts, Julian Roberts, and Sheila Wilkin. We owe a special debt of gratitude to Juan L. Guillen who graciously took on a disproportionate share of the translation, and never failed to turn things around on time.
