1 Plaintiff Immigrant Defenders Law Center (ImmDef or Plaintiff) respectfully
2 moves this Court for emergency relief to stay Defendants’ planned reimplementation 3 of the 2019 Migrant Protection Protocols policy (MPP 1.0). Pursuant to 5 U.S.C.
4 § 705, the effective date of reimplementation should be stayed pending the 5 conclusion of this litigation, which challenges the unlawful implementation of the 6 policy that Defendants are restarting “immediately.” Defendants’ prior 7 implementation of MPP 1.0, beginning in January 2019, violated the First 8 Amendment and the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), causing harm to ImmDef 9 that is the subject of this litigation. Absent an emergency stay, Defendants’ 10 reimplementation of MPP 1.0 will cause ImmDef further irreparable harm. It is fair 11 and equitable to maintain the status quo until a determination on the lawfulness of 12 MPP 1.0 can be made on the merits.

13 I. INTRODUCTION

14 As this Court has already noted, “Defendants have conceded publicly and in 15 papers filed during this litigation that MPP is indefensible as a matter of policy, in 16 large part because of the burdens it imposed on the right to apply for asylum,” 17 including concerns about “the non-refoulement process, fairness and reliability of 18 proceedings, notice of hearings, and disparate impact on court appearance rates and 19 outcomes.” ECF 261, Order on Motion to Dismiss (MTD Order) at 34. MPP 1.0 not 20 only placed thousands of asylum seekers in grave danger in Mexico,<sup>1</sup> but also placed 21 significant restrictions on Organizational Plaintiffs’, including ImmDef’s, ability to 22 advise and counsel potential and existing clients. ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 48.

24 _____
25 <sup>1</sup> See Adam Isacson, Testimony before the U.S. Senate Committee on Homeland 26 Security and Governmental Affairs, Hearing: “Remain in Mexico” (Jan. 16, 2025), 27 available at <https://www.hsgac.senate.gov/wp-content/uploads/Testimony-Isacson-2024-01-16.pdf>.

1 Plaintiff ImmDef is a nonprofit organization whose core work is to represent 2 noncitizens facing removal in and around southern California, seeking to ensure 3 legal representation for all noncitizens in removal proceedings. See Declaration of 4 Hannah Coleman (Coleman Decl.) at Exhibit A, Declaration of Lindsay 5 Toczykowski (Toczykowski Decl.) ¶¶ 2, 5; id. at Exhibit B, Declaration of Margaret 6 Cargioli (Cargioli Decl.) ¶ 3. MPP 1.0 interfered with ImmDef’s ability to carry out 7 its core activities by making its representation of clients much more onerous and 8 costly and by forcing it to reallocate funding and staff to serve people subjected to 9 the 2019 MPP policy, including through the establishment of a new San Diego 10 office. Toczykowski Decl. ¶¶ 6–15; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 7–13. Because Defendants 11 severely restricted ImmDef’s ability to meet and communicate confidentially with 12 MPP clients and prospective clients in the United States, ImmDef staff were forced 13 to engage in regular cross-border travel that was financially burdensome to the 14 organization and personally dangerous for staff, to provide competent 15 representation. Toczykowski Decl. ¶¶ 10–11, 15; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 10–13. And 16 because providing legal services for noncitizens placed in MPP was more expensive 17 and time-consuming than serving clients in the United States, ImmDef had to 18 decrease the number of clients it could represent under its core programs.
19 Toczykowski Decl. ¶¶ 14–15; Cargioli Decl. ¶ 18.

20 Defendants’ reinstatement of MPP 1.0 will once again interfere with 21 Defendants’ core activities of providing legal assistance to noncitizens in and around 22 southern California.<sup>2</sup> Toczykowski Decl. ¶¶ 16, 18, 21–26; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 15–18.

23 _____
24 <sup>2</sup> While Organizational Plaintiff Jewish Family Service of San Diego is still assessing 25 the likely impact of the reinstatement of MPP 1.0 on its core programs, its harms 26 from the initial implementation of MPP 1.0 have been amply described in prior 27 submissions. See e.g., ECF 38, Declaration of Luis Gonzalez; ECF 121-1, Supplemental Declaration of Luis Gonzalez.

1 Re-engaging in the cross-border representation necessary to competently represent 2 noncitizens in MPP proceedings will cause ImmDef to incur significant financial 3 costs and require its staff to engage in time-consuming, risky travel. Toczyłowski 4 Decl. ¶¶ 21–26; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 17–18. It will also immediately reduce ImmDef’s 5 capacity to serve clients across its existing programs, which currently represent an 6 estimated 3,100 noncitizen clients and assist an estimated additional 33,000 7 noncitizens each year. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶¶ 5, 18, 21–25.

8 ImmDef seeks an emergency order staying Defendants’ reimplementaion of 9 MPP 1.0 pending the conclusion of this litigation, which directly challenges the 10 lawfulness of the implementation of the reinstated policy. This relief will prevent 11 imminent, irreparable harm to ImmDef, which is likely to succeed on the merits of 12 its claims, and the balance of hardships and public interest favor ImmDef.

13 II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

14 Between January 2019 and February 2021, Defendants used MPP 1.0 to trap 15 asylum seekers in Mexico under perilous conditions that obstructed their ability to 16 meaningfully access the U.S. asylum system and obtain legal representation.

17 Starting in January 2019, Defendants rapidly rolled out MPP 1.0 at ports of 18 entry across the U.S.-Mexico border. Through MPP 1.0, the U.S. government 19 returned nearly 70,000 asylum-seeking individuals to border regions of Mexico to 20 await their hearings in U.S. immigration court.<sup>3</sup> Despite returning these asylum 21 seekers to areas notorious for high rates of kidnappings, rapes, murders, and other

1 violence, see ECF 200-1, Second Amended Complaint (“SAC”) ¶¶ 53–58, the U.S.
2 government provided them with no resources to ensure their safety, meet their basic 3 needs, or meaningfully participate in their immigration proceedings. In the words of 4 Defendant DHS, MPP 1.0:

5       impos[ed] substantial and unjustifiable human costs on migrants 6 who were exposed to harm while waiting in Mexico . . . . Significant 7 evidence indicates that individuals were subject to extreme violence 8 and insecurity at the hands of transnational criminal organizations 9 that profited from putting migrants in harm’s way while awaiting their court hearings in Mexico.<sup>4</sup>

10       In addition to trapping individuals in conditions that were “crowded, 11 unsanitary, and beset by violence,”<sup>5</sup> MPP 1.0 severely obstructed legal 12 representation for all noncitizens in the program. While Executive Office for 13 Immigration Review (EOIR) records indicate that 80% of asylum seekers appearing 14 in immigration court have legal representation,<sup>6</sup> only 10% of individuals subjected 15 to MPP 1.0 were able to obtain counsel due to the constraints the policy placed on 16 them and on immigration counsel.<sup>7</sup> For the few lucky enough to connect in person

1 with counsel, attorney-client consultations were limited to a one-hour window 2 before scheduled hearings and lacked the confidential space or legal resources 3 needed to make the consultation meaningful. Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 10–11. DHS has 4 described “the difficulties in accessing counsel” in MPP 1.0 as “endemic to the 5 program’s design,” including that “[o]pportunities for attorneys to meet with their 6 clients outside of those organized at the hearing locations were limited due to, among 7 other constraints, complications associated with cross-border communication.”<sup>8</sup>

8 The challenges to obtaining counsel were so grave that DHS acknowledged 9 that “[i]nadequate access to counsel cast[] doubt on the reliability of removal 10 proceeding[s]”<sup>9</sup> during MPP 1.0. Indeed, the outcomes of MPP 1.0 hearings show 11 that the program effectively denied noncitizens any meaningful opportunity to obtain 12 asylum. Over a 14-month period, 98% of individuals subjected to MPP 1.0 received 13 removal orders.<sup>10</sup> DHS statistics show that only 732 individuals in MPP 1.0 out of a 14 total of 67,694 cases, or 1.1%, were granted relief from removal; in contrast, the 27 Board of Immigration Appeals (“BIA”) or Attorney General. 8 C.F.R. § 1241.1. An individual whose appeal is denied by the BIA may file a petition for review in the relevant federal circuit court of appeals, but that individual is considered to have a final order of removal unless and until the order has been vacated by the federal circuit court. See 8 U.S.C. § 1252(b).

1 general “relief-granted rate” for similarly situated Central American asylum seekers
2 not subjected to MPP 1.0 is more than 26 times greater.<sup>11</sup>

3 On January 20, 2021, DHS announced the suspension of new enrollments into 4 MPP.<sup>12</sup> Although DHS began winding down the program the following month, MPP
5 1.0 continued until it was terminated by the DHS Secretary in June 2021. Following 6 a legal challenge to this termination, the Northern District of Texas issued an 7 injunction prohibiting Defendants from implementing or enforcing the June 2021 8 termination memo and requiring it to “implement MPP in good faith.” Texas v.
9 Biden, 554 F. Supp. 3d 818, 857 (N.D. Tex. 2021). In October 2021, the DHS 10 Secretary issued a second termination memo, again ending MPP 1.0. While 11 challenging the injunction of the first termination, DHS nevertheless complied with 12 that injunction by reimplementing Migrant Protection Protocols – MPP 2.0.<sup>13</sup>

13 On June 30, 2022, the Supreme Court affirmed Defendants’ authority to end 14 MPP. Biden v. Texas, 142 S. Ct. 2528, 2538, 2541–48 (2022). Pursuant to that 15 decision, the Northern District of Texas vacated its injunction on August 8, 2022.

1 When moving for a preliminary injunction, a plaintiff “must establish that he 2 is likely to succeed on the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the 3 absence of preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and that 4 an injunction is in the public interest.” Saravia for A.H. v. Sessions, 905 F.3d 1137, 5 1142 (9th Cir. 2018) (quoting Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 6 (2008)). Under the Ninth Circuit’s “sliding scale” approach to preliminary 7 injunctions, “the elements of the preliminary injunction test are balanced, so that a 8 stronger showing of one element may offset a weaker showing of another,” 9 Hernandez v. Lynch, No. EDCV 16-00620-JGB (KKx), 2016 WL 7116611, at *20

11 where the plaintiff raises “serious questions going to the merits,” All. for the Wild 12 Rockies v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1135 (9th Cir. 2011) (citation omitted). For the 13 reasons discussed below, Plaintiff meets all these requirements.

14 A. ImmDef Will Suffer Irreparable Harm in the Absence of 15 Immediate Relief.

16 Irreparable harm is “harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy.” 17 Arizona Dream Act Coal. v. Brewer, 757 F.3d 1053, 1068 (9th Cir. 2014). Where 18 parties cannot recover monetary damages from their injury, as in APA cases, 19 economic harm can be considered irreparable. E. Bay Sanctuary Covenant v. Biden, 20 993 F.3d 640, 677 (9th Cir. 2021) (citing California v. Azar, 911 F.3d 558, 581 (9th 21 Cir. 2018)). “Intangible injuries may also qualify as irreparable harm, because such 22 injuries ‘generally lack an adequate legal remedy.’” Id. (quoting Brewer, 757 F.3d 23 at 1068). ImmDef faces severe organizational and financial harm with the 24 resumption of MPP. The resulting “significant change in [ImmDef’s] programs and 25 a concomitant loss of funding” constitute irreparable injuries. Id.

1 During the first implementation of MPP 1.0, ImmDef faced serious 2 impediments to carrying out its core business activities of representing and providing 3 other types of legal services to noncitizens in and around southern California who 4 were facing removal. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶ 5; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 14–16.<sup>21</sup> To represent 5 asylum seekers forced to remain in Mexico, ImmDef established its Cross-Border 6 Initiative, based in San Diego, to provide direct representation, pro se assistance, 7 and advocacy for individuals subjected to MPP whose cases were before the San 8 Diego Immigration Court. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶¶ 6–8; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 7–8. The 9 necessity of routine travel to Mexico to consult with ImmDef’s clients was costly, 10 time-intensive, and detracted from other legal work. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶¶ 7–15; 11 Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 7–13. In representing clients in MPP, ImmDef also faced numerous 12 other obstacles not associated with pro bono legal representation of clients in the 13 United States, including communication barriers, limited time for face-to-face 14 meetings in the United States, and a lack of confidential meeting space. Toczyłowski 15 Decl. ¶ 15. Thus, ImmDef had to hire staff in San Diego, purchase international 17 <sup>21</sup> As this Court has previously held, ImmDef has standing to assert “each of [its] 18 claims” here, because it has shown injury in fact that is fairly traceable to the 19 implementation of MPP 1.0 and redressable by the Court. ECF 261 (MTD Order) 20 at 30. Moreover, Defendants’ implementation of MPP 1.0 “directly affected and 21 interfered with [ImmDef’s] core business activities” by “perceptibly impair[ing] 22 [ImmDef’s] ability to provide counseling” and services to noncitizens subject to 23 MPP through restrictions on ImmDef’s ability to communicate with and represent 24 clients, and by forcing ImmDef to travel internationally to meet with its clients. Food 25 & Drug Admin. v. All. for Hippocratic Med., 602 U.S. 367, 395 (2024) (quoting 26 Havens Realty Corp. v. Coleman, 455 U.S. 363, 379 (1982)); see infra Section 27 III.B.1–3. With the reimplementa-tion of MPP 1.0, ImmDef faces the same barriers 28 to its core activities of representing and providing services to noncitizens, quite “apart from [any injury caused by its] response” to MPP 1.0, Ariz. All. for Retired Ams. v. Mayes, 117 F.4th 1165, 1170 (9th Cir. 2024), or any “setback to [its] abstract social issues,” All. for Hippocratic Med., 602 U.S. at 394.

1 phone plans, and rent confidential space for client meetings in Mexico. Id. ¶¶ 12, 15.
2 And staff who had to travel to northern Mexico often did so at risk of personal 3 danger, given the volatile conditions there. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶ 25; Cargioli Decl.
4 ¶¶ 9, 13.

5 With the cessation of MPP from approximately October 2022 until January 6 2025, ImmDef has expanded its legal representation programs for adults and 7 children in and around southern California and undertaken several new initiatives.
8 Toczyłowski Decl. ¶¶ 16, 18; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 14–15. The reinstatement of MPP 9 1.0 jeopardizes all of this work and will harm ImmDef through increased operational 10 costs, risks to staff, threats to the financial health of the organization, and renewed 11 impediments to ImmDef’s representation of its potential and existing clients in and 12 around southern California. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶¶ 21–25; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 16–18.
13 ImmDef will have to train staff on the complexities of MPP cases; hire additional 14 staff to represent clients and provide information to noncitizens in MPP; fund staff 15 travel, work space, and international communications; and decrease the overall 16 number of clients it can represent. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶¶ 21–25; Cargioli Decl.
17 ¶¶ 14–18.

18 Furthermore, ImmDef will be harmed because its core work of providing legal 19 representation in removal proceedings to clients in and around southern California 20 will once again be “perceptibly impaired” by Defendants’ reimplementing of MPP 21 1.0, particularly by Defendants’ restrictions on ImmDef’s ability to communicate 22 and consult with potential and existing clients. All. for Hippocratic Med., 602 U.S.
23 at 395; see infra Section III.B.1.

B. ImmDef Is Likely to Succeed on the Merits of its Claims.

1. Violation of First Amendment Rights to Advise Potential and Existing Clients

ImmDef is likely to succeed on the merits of its First Amendment claim that Defendants’ reimplementation of MPP 1.0 interferes with its right to advise existing and potential clients. During the implementation of MPP 1.0, Defendants (1) imposed strict limits on the time allotted for ImmDef and other legal service providers to consult with existing clients prior to their hearings, (2) prevented them from communicating with or advising potential clients in the immigration courts, and (3) prohibited them from conducting “know your rights” presentations for individuals subjected to MPP 1.0 while they were in the United States for their hearings. ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 48.

The First Amendment protects legal service providers from government interference when they are “advocating lawful means of vindicating legal rights.” NAACP v. Button, 371 U.S. 415, 437 (1963). Accordingly, legal service providers have the right to advise potential clients, based on the recognition that “the efficacy of litigation as a means of advancing the cause of civil liberties often depends on the ability to make legal assistance available to suitable litigants.” In re Primus, 436 U.S. 412, 431 (1978). Organizations’ rights to provide pro bono legal assistance to immigrants subject to removal proceedings “may ‘fall[] neatly within the precedent set by the Supreme Court in Button and its progeny.” ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 49 (quoting Nw. Immigrant Rts. Project v. Sessions, 2017 WL 3189032, at *3 (W.D. Wash. July 27, 2017)). In short, attorneys advising, assisting, and consulting with asylum-seeking clients are engaging in the “creation and dissemination” of legal information, which constitutes protected speech within the meaning of the First Amendment. Sorrell v. IMS Health Inc., 564 U.S. 552, 570 (2011).

1 After stranding ImmDef’s clients in Mexico under MPP 1.0, Defendants
2 placed specific and direct restrictions on ImmDef’s and other legal service 3 providers’ speech. SAC ¶¶ 63, 278–84; ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 48–49. These 4 restrictions included a one-hour limit for counsel to meet with clients prior to their 5 hearings while they were physically located in the United States and a requirement 6 that attorney-client consultations take place in non-confidential settings. See, e.g., 7 Exhibit C, Explanation Memo at AR00021; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 10–11. In some 8 instances, attorney consultations had to take place in a room with ICE officers 9 present. See, e.g., Cargioli Decl. ¶ 10.

10 Defendants also restricted the ability of ImmDef and other legal service 11 providers to advise potential clients. Only asylum seekers who had arranged to be 12 represented by counsel prior to their hearings were permitted to speak to counsel 13 while in the U.S. for their immigration court proceedings. Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 11, 13.
14 In some instances, attorneys, including ImmDef attorneys, were outright prohibited 15 from speaking with pro se asylum seekers while they were in the United States for 16 hearings. See Exhibit D, DHS00000691 at 694–95 (Human Rights Watch Report); 17 Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 12–13. The only way for ImmDef to exercise its First Amendment 18 rights to advise potential clients and to provide legal advice to existing clients 19 subjected to MPP 1.0 was by paying for staff to travel to and rent safe meeting spaces 20 in Mexico. Toczyłowski Decl. ¶ 15; Cargioli Decl. ¶¶ 10–11. Additionally, because 21 the costs of representing clients in Mexico were so high, ImmDef was forced to 22 decrease the number of clients it could represent through its other projects.
23 Toczyłowski Decl. ¶¶ 14–15.

24 The reimplementaion of MPP 1.0 will again impose barriers on ImmDef’s 25 ability to consult with clients and potential clients in Mexico. Toczyłowski Decl.
26 ¶¶ 21–22. Thus, Plaintiff is likely to succeed on its claim that Defendants’ 27

1 reimplementing of MPP 1.0 violates the First Amendment right to advise potential 2 and existing clients.

3 2. Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2) – Violation of 4 the Right to Apply for Asylum, 8 U.S.C. § 1158(a)(1)

5 ImmDef is likely to succeed on the merits of its claim that the 6 reimplementing of MPP 1.0 violates the right to apply for asylum. See SAC 7 ¶¶ 329–41. The Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”) establishes the statutory 8 right to apply for asylum. 8 U.S.C. § 1158. This right is violated when the 9 government engages in “a pattern or practice that forecloses the opportunity to 10 apply.” Campos v. Nail, 43 F.3d 1285, 1288 (9th Cir. 1994) (citing Orantes– 11 Hernandez v. Thornburgh, 919 F.2d 549, 564 (9th Cir. 1990)). Legal services 12 organizations play an essential role in assisting people who are seeking asylum 13 because the application process is complex and difficult. Studies have shown that 14 represented noncitizens are vastly more likely to succeed in their immigration cases 15 than those who appear pro se.<sup>22</sup>

16 ImmDef is likely to succeed in establishing that the reimplementing of MPP 17 1.0 “forecloses” asylum seekers’ “opportunity to apply,” Campos, 43 F.3d at 1288, 18 because it creates obstacles at every step of the application process. DHS has already 19 acknowledged that MPP was “indefensible” in part because of the “burdens it 20 imposed on the right to apply for asylum.” ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 34 (citing ECF 21 189 at 3). The record in this case confirms that the 2019 implementation of MPP 1.0 22 foreclosed the opportunity to apply for asylum, and its reimplementing will have 23 the same consequences, including for ImmDef’s clients. For the reasons discussed 24 infra, Section III.B.1, MPP 1.0 impeded the ability of individuals seeking asylum to 1 retain and consult with counsel, including ImmDef. MPP 1.0 further violated the 2 right to apply for asylum in the following ways.

3 First, MPP 1.0 trapped individuals in a foreign country under dangerous 4 conditions in a manner that obstructed meaningful access to all aspects of the U.S.
5 asylum system. The government’s own investigations into MPP 1.0 concluded that 6 the policy “impos[ed] substantial and unjustifiable human costs on the individuals 7 who were exposed to harm while waiting in Mexico,” including “extreme violence 8 and insecurity at the hands of transnational criminal organizations.” Exhibit E, 9 Administrative Record, Texas v. Biden, No. 2:21-cv-00067-Z (N.D. Tex. Sept. 2, 10 2022), at AR00001, DHS, “Termination of the Migrant Protection Protocols” (Oct.
11 29, 2021) at 2–3; see also Cargioli Decl. ¶ 9 (ImmDef’s clients “were kidnapped, 12 tortured, or assaulted in Mexico while waiting for their hearings”). Conditions in 13 northern Mexico remain dangerous.<sup>23</sup> The re-implementation of MPP 1.0 will only 14 exacerbate these conditions by creating a concentration of vulnerable individuals 15 who are easy targets of crime in northern Mexico.<sup>24</sup>

16 These perilous conditions “made it challenging for some to remain in Mexico 17 for the duration of their proceedings.” Exhibit C, Explanation Memo at AR00016.

26 and extortionists were waiting every day for MPP returnees to arrive at their daily 27 drop-off points near ports of entry, after attending hearings or being added to the program”); id. at 9 (“Kidnappers specifically sought out people with Remain in Mexico hearings because they had a strong motivation to pay more.”).

1 As a result, many individuals subjected to MPP 1.0 were forced to abandon their 2 asylum claims, thwarting ImmDef’s ability to carry out its work. Id. at AR00024-3 25; Cargioli Decl. ¶ 9. Indeed, ImmDef client and Individual Plaintiff Chepo Doe 4 and his daughter were compelled to return to El Salvador and abandon their asylum 5 claims when his daughter contracted a life-threatening illness that Mexican doctors 6 refused to treat. ECF 157-6, Declaration of Chepo Doe ¶ 3. Because “the United 7 States has limited ability to fix these issues,” Exhibit C, Explanation Memo at 8 AR00016, this obstruction of the right to apply for asylum is inherent in any 9 implementation of MPP 1.0. The reimplementing of MPP 1.0 is certain to cause 10 future asylum seekers to experience the same dangerous, potentially life-threatening 11 conditions.

12 Second, for the small number of individuals stranded in Mexico who were 13 able to obtain counsel, MPP 1.0 precluded meaningful consultation. Individuals 14 subjected to MPP 1.0 frequently lacked access to telephones or other means of 15 communicating across the border. Exhibit C, Explanation Memo at AR00021. And 16 due to the host of safety concerns outlined above, many legal organizations had 17 policies preventing attorneys from meeting with their clients in Mexico. Id.
18 Ultimately, these deficiencies in the asylum process led to drastically worse 19 outcomes in removal proceedings for individuals subject to MPP 1.0, as compared 20 with individuals seeking asylum from within the United States. See, e.g., id. at 21 AR00022 (individuals in MPP 1.0 “were substantially more likely to receive in 22 absentia removal orders than comparable noncitizens who were not placed in MPP 23 during the relevant time period”).

24 These deficiencies severely obstructed ImmDef’s ability to provide legal 25 services to its asylum-seeking clients and required ImmDef to fund staff travel to 26 Mexico, rent space for confidential meetings with clients, and pay for international 27

1 phone plans for its staff. See Toczykowski Decl. ¶¶ 10, 14–15. The re-2 implementation of MPP 1.0 will impede ImmDef’s core activities, impair its legal 3 representation efforts, and place its staff at risk of physical harm. Id. ¶¶ 21–25.
4 Accordingly, ImmDef is likely to prevail on its claim that Defendants’ 5 reimplementing of MPP 1.0 violates the right to apply for asylum.

6 3. Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2) – Violation of 7 the Right to Access Counsel, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1158(d)(4), 8 1229a(b)(4)(A), 1362

9 ImmDef is also likely to succeed on the merits of its claim that Defendants’ 10 reimplementing of MPP 1.0—just like their 2019 implementation—violates the 11 right to access counsel under the INA. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1158(d)(4), 1229a(b)(4)(A), 12 and 1362. Even assuming arguendo that Defendants have authority under 8 U.S.C.
13 § 1225(b)(2)(C) to “return” individuals to contiguous territory, such returns must be 14 implemented in a manner that does not impede the right to access counsel in 15 immigration proceedings. See ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 29 (“immigration statutes 16 must be read as a ‘harmonious whole’” (citations omitted)); see also, e.g., U.S. West 17 Commc’ns, Inc. v. Hamilton, 224 F.3d 1049, 1053 (9th Cir. 2000) (where provisions 18 “form part of the same Act, the duty to harmonize them is particularly acute,” as 19 “individual sections of a single statute should be construed together” (citation 20 omitted)).

21 The INA mandates that asylum seekers have meaningful access to counsel.
22 See Torres v. United States Dep’t of Homeland Sec., 411 F. Supp. 3d 1036, 1060– 23 61 (C.D. Cal. 2019); Lin v. Ashcroft, 377 F.3d 1014, 1023, 1025 (9th Cir. 2004).
24 “[M]eaningful access to counsel” requires “reasonable time to locate counsel and 25 permit counsel to prepare for the hearing,” and effective assistance in “reasonably 26 presenting [one’s] case.” ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 37 (quoting Biwot v. Gonzales, 27 403 F.3d 1094, 1098–99 (9th Cir. 2005), and Lopez v. I.N.S., 775 F.2d 1015, 1017

1 (9th Cir. 1985)). Defendants must do more than “merely” advise individuals of the 2 possibility of representation and provide a list of pro bono legal service providers—3 especially when those providers are not located near the place “where the 4 [noncitizen] [is] being detained.” See ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 37 (rejecting 5 Defendants’ argument to the contrary); Orantes-Hernandez, 919 F.2d at 565.
6 Individuals must also have access to telephones to communicate with their counsel.
7 Id. at 566; see also Usubakunov v. Garland, 16 F.4th 1299, 1305 (9th Cir. 2021).
8 And they must be able to meet face-to-face with counsel and communicate 9 confidentially about their cases. Torres, 411 F. Supp. 3d at 1060; Arroyo v. U.S.
10 Dep’t of Homeland Sec., No. SACV 19-815 JGB (SHKx), 2019 WL 2912848, at 11 *17 (C.D. Cal. June 20, 2019). When individuals are subjected to “numerous 12 obstacles, the cumulative effect of which [is] to prevent [them] from contacting 13 counsel and receiving any legal advice,” their right to counsel is violated. Orantes- 14 Hernandez, 919 F.2d at 565.

15 Defendants’ implementation of MPP 1.0 trapped individuals in conditions that 16 obstructed their access to legal representation and imposed systemic obstacles to the 17 ability to access legal representation, the cumulative effect of which is tantamount 18 to a denial of counsel. As a result, asylum seekers returned to Mexico under MPP 19 1.0 are generally unable to exercise their right to appeal or seek reopening of their 20 asylum proceedings. Defendants conceded that they had “significant concerns about 21 the practical obstacles to interacting with counsel across an international boundary.” 22 ECF 189 (Defs.’ Mot. to Dismiss) at 26 (citing Exhibit C, Explanation Memo at 23 AR00020–22); ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 36–37 (referring to this “substantial 24 concession”).

25 Thus, ImmDef is likely to succeed on its claim that Defendants’ 26 reimplementing of MPP 1.0 violates the right to access counsel.

C. The Balance of Hardships and Public Interest Factors Tip Sharply in ImmDef's Favor.

ImmDef's hardships outweigh any potential inconvenience to the government. Simply stated, the reimplementation of MPP 1.0 will unlawfully deprive ImmDef of its First Amendment rights to advise potential and existing clients and will contravene the APA. See supra Section III.B. Moreover, as explained above, because MPP 1.0 as implemented was unlawful and the government has made clear that it intends to reimplement the same unlawful "2019 MPP Policy," supra n.17, the relief requested would not harm the government. Castillo v. Barr, 449 F. Supp. 3d 915, 923 (C.D. Cal. 2020) ("[T]here is no harm to the Government when a court prevents the Government from engaging in unlawful practices.").

ImmDef has articulated facts demonstrating the severe and imminent risk of grave harm it faces due to the reimplementation of MPP 1.0, and its specific hardships weigh heavily in favor of granting a stay under Section 705 of the APA. Following the Trump Administration's announcement that it intended to resume MPP 1.0, ImmDef started planning to reallocate resources from other programs to ensure it can provide legal services to noncitizens subjected to MPP. Toczykowski Decl. ¶¶ 19–25. Based on the 2019 implementation, ImmDef expects that the reimplementation of MPP 1.0 will require them to spend "more staff time and more funds to provide representation in MPP proceedings" than is typically required for immigration court proceedings where the noncitizen resides in the United States and is available for in-person meetings with ImmDef staff. Id. ¶ 21. The reimplementation will require ImmDef to "refocus much of its time" on legal consultations, representation, and Know Your Rights presentations for individuals enrolled in MPP 1.0, and training new attorneys on the complexities of MPP cases.

1 Id. ¶ 23. ImmDef will also need to hire more staff, including attorneys, legal support, 2 and administrative staff, and to seek additional sources of funding, and its 3 representation of potential and existing clients will be much more onerous due to the 4 difficulties inherent in providing legal representation internationally to clients at risk 5 of torture, kidnapping, and other severe harm. Id. ¶¶ 22–23; see supra Section III.A.
6 A stay of reimplementing of the MPP 1.0 policy is essential to avert these harms.

7 Protecting ImmDef’s rights is unquestionably in the public interest. See 8 Torres v. U.S. Dep’t of Homeland Sec., No. EDCV 18-2604 JGB (SHKx), 2020 WL 9 3124216, at *9 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 11, 2020) (“As a general rule, ‘it is always in the 10 public interest to prevent the violation of a party’s constitutional rights.’” (quoting 11 Melendres v. Arpaio, 695 F.3d 990, 1002 (9th Cir. 2012))). As this Court has 12 previously held, “the public has an interest in the orderly administration of justice 13 and in preventing needless administrative appeals, delay, and expense produced by 14 the denial of access to counsel and by non-adherence to statutory and constitutional 15 rights.” Id. And Defendants have no legitimate reason to violate the Constitution, 16 see United States v. U.S. Coin & Currency, 401 U.S. 715, 726 (1971) (Brennan, J., 17 concurring), or federal law, see Valle del Sol Inc. v. Whiting, 732 F.3d 1006, 1029 18 (9th Cir. 2013).

19 For these reasons, the balance of hardships and public interest factors tips 20 sharply in favor of Plaintiff.

21 D. No Procedural Issues Preclude this Court’s Review or the 22 Requested Relief.

23 1. ImmDef Has Standing.

24 As this Court has previously held, ImmDef has standing to assert “each of [its] 25 claims” here, because it has shown injury in fact, fairly traceable to the 26 implementation of MPP, and redressable by the Court. ECF 261 (MTD Order) at 30.

1 The implementation of MPP “directly affected and interfered with [ImmDef’s] core 2 business activities” by “perceptibly impair[ing] [ImmDef’s] ability to provide 3 counseling” and services to noncitizens subject to MPP through Defendants’ 4 restrictions on ImmDef’s ability to communicate with and represent clients. All. for 5 Hippocratic Med., 602 U.S. at 395 (quoting Havens Realty Corp. v. Coleman, 455
6 U.S. 363, 379 (1982)); see supra Section III.B. And in order to represent its clients 7 competently and serve asylum seekers subjected to MPP, ImmDef had to reallocate 8 staff time, expend significant time and financial resources, send its staff to Mexico, 9 and a rent a new office, all at the expense of its core programs. See supra Section 10 III.A. ImmDef therefore suffered more than a “setback to [its] abstract social 11 interests,” All. for Hippocratic Med., 602 U.S. at 394, and the reimplementaion of 12 MPP will cause significant financial and organizational harm to ImmDef. See supra 13 Section III.A.

14 2. Section 1252(f)(1) Does Not Preclude a Stay.

15 Garland v. Aleman Gonzalez, 596 U.S. 543 (2022) does not affect the 16 availability of a stay of the effective date of the reimplementaion of the 2019 MPP 17 policy which is a “different form[] of relief” than an injunction. See Washington v.
18 United States Dep’t of Homeland Sec., 408 F. Supp. 3d 1191, 1212 (E.D. Wash.
19 2019) (citing Nken v. Holder, 556 U.S. 418, 428 (2009)). An injunction “is directed 20 at someone, and governs that party’s conduct.” Nken, 556 U.S. at 428. “By contrast, 21 instead of directing the conduct of a particular actor, a stay operates upon the judicial 22 proceeding itself. It does so either by halting or postponing some portion of the 23 proceeding, or by temporarily divesting an order of enforceability.” Id.; see also 24 Texas v. Biden, 646 F. Supp. 3d 753, 768 (N.D. Tex. 2022) (“Section 1252(f)(1) 25 does not prohibit issuance of a ‘stay’ under Section 705 [of the APA].”).
26
27

1 IV. CONCLUSION

2 For the foregoing reasons, ImmDef respectfully requests that this Court stay 3 the reimplementation of MPP 1.0 pending the conclusion of this litigation.
